

In Bloody, Bitter Da Nang: 'Why Does U.S. Allow This?'

Pagoda 'Eye' in Hurricane of Anarchy

By LEON DANIEL

DA NANG, Viet Nam (UPI) — The dead, the dying and the determined held the pagoda fortress.

Machineguns, tank cannon, grenades and automatic rifles spat fire and death only 400 yards from the tiled walls of the Tinh Hoa pagoda.

In the temple I found fear but no panic.

They laid the wounded under a large shade tree beside the walls and teen-age Buddhists girls fanned them and tried to smile.

In a little building next to the temple they laid out five bodies, victims of the war beyond the wall. In the same building sat

Buddhist monks fasting in a gesture they hoped would drive away the government troops besieging them.

Some girls fluttered by in their willowy ao dais, the native dress, and bent over two small boys wounded by shrapnel. An old woman leaned her head against a wall and wailed. A monk sounded the temple gongs.

A young Buddhist, his hands trembling, handed me a mimeographed letter.

"Be sure Gen. Walt gets this," he said.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt commands the U.S. marine force on the outskirts of town. The Buddhists wanted the leathernecks to save them.

A few minutes before I had been crouching on the other side, behind the Vietnamese government marines and their tanks. A rebel ambulance drove up and the marines gave him permission to cross to the rebel lines. Soldiers respect battlefield life-savers. I jumped aboard.

I kept my head low for whatever good it did. The back of the driver's hands dripped with sweat. I watched the drops fall as the ambulance bumped over the battlefield.

I leaped off the ambulance two blocks from the pagoda. I found CBS correspondent Bill Stout and cameraman Jerry Adams. To the drumbeat of bullets and whizzing shells, we moved toward the eye of the hurricane, that calm pagoda.

The firing increased. We ducked behind some trees. A tree is not good psychological protection against bullets. We moved behind a building. I paused a moment and then ran on ahead.

There I found Roger Peterson, an ABC correspondent and several of his colleagues head-

Talks Fail

Fishing Pact Junked

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States announced Friday they have scrapped a 1957 agreement and will make their own rules on salmon fishing on the west coast.

A joint communique issued after three days of negotiations in Seattle and a statement in Ottawa by Fisheries Minister Hobbach made it clear the two countries had disagreed over salmon fishing restrictions.

In the communique, both countries stated they will no longer be bound by the 1957 agreement which prohibits fishing beyond the surf line along all the coastline except Alaska where the boundary was from headland to headland.

NO ALTERNATIVE

Mr. Hobbach told the Commons Friday that after failure of talks in Seattle there is no alternative but for Canada to reserve the right to extend fisheries seaward, where appropriate, to correct inequities.

The dispute centred around complaints from Canada that U.S. fishermen are intercepting salmon bound for British Columbia rivers in the southeastern Alaska area. The U.S. replied it has historic fishing rights in that area.

Each side proposed revised net fishing lines but neither would accept the other's plan.

NAME COMMITTEE

A committee was named to study a co-operative research plan aimed at a solution.

Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) said in Ottawa the U.S. attitude is one of arrogance, and he accused the U.S. of using a two-headed policy.

The U.S. had "spoken out belligerently" when Japanese fishermen intercepted fish from Alaskan waters, he said.

EXPECTED OFFER

A spokesman in Washington said the U.S. had expected Canada would make an offer in return for reduction of the Americans' salmon netting in southeastern Alaska.

"We thought some compromise could have been offered and agreed to, but apparently it was not," he said.

Truck Cleared in Hunt For Bomber's Parcel

BRANDON (CP) — A truckload of Winnipeg-bound mail was searched in vain Friday night as police and postal officials looked for a parcel mailed by the man who died in a parliament building bomb blast Wednesday.

No suspected mail was found in the 100 bags searched.

RCMP and postal authorities are attempting to find the parcel — police say it may be booby-trapped — which was said to have been mailed by Paul Joseph Chartier to his estranged wife in B.C.

First indications were it might be on the mail car of the CPR's passenger train, the Canadian. But a thorough search of the east bound train failed to locate it.

Harrison Murray, district director of the post office here, said trucks as well as trains carry mail from British Columbia where the parcel originally was addressed.

RCMP said Paul Joseph Chartier mailed the parcel to his estranged wife in B.C. before his death. Chartier, who evidence indicates planned to explode a dynamite bomb in the House of Commons chamber Wednesday, was killed when it went off prematurely in a nearby washroom.

Mrs. Chartier could not be located by the post office, however, and the parcel was returned to Chartier's address in Toronto.

In Salmio, B.C., Mrs. Chartier confirmed she was told by the RCMP Thursday of a possibility of a booby-trapped parcel had been mailed to her by her husband.

Salmio RCMP said the parcel, about 14 inches square, arrived there a week or 10 days ago.

but evidently was returned by her on the mail car of the CPR's passenger train, the Canadian. But a thorough search of the east bound train failed to locate it.

Canada Wants U.S. Panhandle

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadians would like to absorb the Alaska Panhandle with suitable recompense for the United States, Speaker Sydney Smith of the Canadian Senate said Friday.

He was speaking at a press conference ending the ninth Canada-United States inter-parliamentary conference.

The panhandle, an old subject in bilateral talks, extends more than 300 miles down Canada's West Coast and cuts off access to tidewater.

Smith, British Columbia Liberal and a co-leader of the 24-man Canadian delegation, said Canadians want the Alaskan boundary pushed back to the 60th parallel. This would wipe out the panhandle and include Juneau, the Alaskan capital.

Smith didn't specify what sort of recompense he felt Canada would offer but suggested the issue is for a government-to-government approach.

The conference report said Canada regards the panhandle as an impediment to developing northern B.C. and the Yukon and that "the problem was considered so grave that while Canada was not really interested in paving the Alaska Highway, it would seriously consider doing so for access rights."

The U.S. response to that was mention of a bill pending in the Senate to pay half the cost of paving the Alaska Highway linking the northern state via Alberta, B.C. and the Yukon.

He said the solution rests in "establishing a greater human relationship between ourselves and the creator."

Breakdowns in morality, he explained, can also be created by parents who replace family standards and moral courage with material things, to gain the love of their children.

Dr. Claxton, a resident of Kent, is on a speaking tour of Canada. He was invited here by the Anglican archbishop of British Columbia.

Buddhist Ultimatum to Ky:

QUIT OR FACE BLOODBATH

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese war planes bombed rebel positions at Da Nang today for the first time and in Saigon thousands of Buddhist monks and nuns staged a sitdown-hunger strike against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

At Da Nang, rebel troops lobbed mortar shells into the big U.S. air base, jammed with aircraft, but no damage or casualties were reported.

There were fears the day-long hunger strike would set off new violence in the capital, where anti-government rioting erupted Friday night.

The rise in the tempo of the political and military struggle threatened to further stall the war against the Viet Cong.

Fresh gunfire crackled in Da Nang, a hotbed of Buddhist opposition, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

From Hue, a Buddhist centre 50 miles beyond Da Nang, the nation's leading monk, Thich Tri Quang, telephoned this ultimatum to the Buddhist Institute here for relay to Ky: Resign or more blood will flow.

'Pray for People'

As the gulf between Ky and the Buddhists widened, about 400 to 500 monks and nuns, some carrying first-aid kits, marched to Saigon's main Buddhist institute to begin their strike. They were joined by hundreds of others.

Thich Thien Minh, one of the powerful institute leaders, urged the Buddhists to "pray for the people of central Viet Nam" where, he charged, hundreds have been killed or wounded in the civil strife.

At daybreak in Da Nang, four Skyraiders from Ky's air force made a low pass at rebel troops on the east side of the Da Nang River and dropped four or five bombs.

They also strafed rebel soldiers. No bombs were dropped into the city itself.

Heavy firing broke out as the planes attacked.

It was the first time air power had been brought into the battle of Da Nang, although there were reports that Vietnamese Air Force planes Friday strafed a column of defecting troops outside the northern city.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge returned from Washington to help work out a solution. The Buddhists are demanding an end to military rule.

Shouting against both the United States and the military government, about 1,000 youths rallied from the Buddhist Institute for a rampage in Saigon streets reminiscent of earlier disorders halted by a mid-April truce.

The mob smashed windows, stoned police and hurled flaming-gasoline bombs. One banner read: "No Vietnamese lives for American dollars."

Police checked the rioters with tear-gas.

Among other developments:

● Reports from the northern provinces making up South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area spoke of two convoys of government troops deserting to join the rebels, presumably at Da Nang. One convoy of defecting troops was reported strayed by Ky's planes.

● American officials hoped economic pressure on northern dissidents would help to achieve a settlement. They spoke of plans to cut supplies in order to bring the rebels to their knees.

● Sporadic fighting went on throughout the day in Da Nang. Machine-gun bullets chewed at the government's Da Nang garrison headquarters; government tanks and rebel gunners staged a 10-minute duel by night across the Da Nang River.

● Monsoon rains limited U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam for the sixth straight day. U.S. Air Cavalrymen fought on against an enemy force in the central highlands of South Viet Nam near An Khe.

State department officials in letter to Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Saigon, said the U.S. is considering ordering the removal of about 400 American civilians from the strife-torn Hue-Da Nang area.

The Saigon government seemed to be aiming at wearing out rather than overrunning rebel troops and armed civilians in Da Nang.

Capt. Nguyen Thu Luong, commander of a company of paratroopers, said they were under orders to shoot high unless they definitely spotted a rebel firing at them.

Buddhist authorities said in a

Hunger Strikers Smashed

SAIGON (UPI) — Riot police, hurling tear gas grenades and firing rifles into the air, smashed through about 5,000 Buddhist hunger strikers in front of the Vinh Hoa Dao pagoda today.

The riot police charged through Buddhist barricades set up about 300 yards on either side of the pagoda.

PULLOUT? 'U.S. HAS NO PLAN'

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — The United States has no contingency plan for the withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam should some future Saigon government ask them to leave, Army Secretary Stanley Resor said here Friday.

His unqualified "No, we don't" response came during a news conference prior to his armed forces week luncheon address to the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A number of army officers present were visibly surprised. In the armed forces it is taken for granted that there are contingency plans for all possible situations.

Russia NATO Partner?

LONDON (AP) — A new idea for modernizing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was reported under official study today. It would allow the Atlantic alliance to work ultimately with the Soviet Union if China emerges as the world's third superpower.

"In reorganizing NATO we should concentrate less on keeping it as a purely defensive organization to meet military threats," said an authoritative British source.

"We should see it more as an organization of Western nations that could negotiate from strength with the aim of arriving at some common ground with Russia about attitudes of the world of the 1980s and 1990s when we might have to contend with a third superpower."

Evacuation Weighed

State department officials in letter to Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Saigon, said the U.S. is considering ordering the removal of about 400 American civilians from the strife-torn Hue-Da Nang area.

The Saigon government seemed to be aiming at wearing out rather than overrunning rebel troops and armed civilians in Da Nang.

Bomber Often in Trouble

EDMONTON (CP) — Paul Joseph Chartier, killed in a bomb blast in the parliament buildings in Ottawa, experienced difficult times with the law, a check of legal records showed Friday.

He once threatened to kill an Edmonton lawyer who was opposing the discharge of his bankruptcy, refused to deliver a Cadillac car for seizure, was convicted twice of obstructing a police officer and once of common assault.

Yet, said his lawyer Allan Wachowich of Edmonton, he was a "very intelligent individual, affable and well-spoken."

UNHAPPY AT HOME
Mr. Wachowich said Chartier was always willing to talk about his marital difficulties and gave the impression he changed jobs and residences because of unhappiness at home.

His biggest and most constant problem, especially during his residence in Edmonton, was to make ends meet, Mr. Wachowich said.

Chartier declared bankruptcy in 1965 and he was investigated by the superintendent of bankruptcies in Ottawa in connection with alleged fraud charges.

He threatened to kill the lawyer who was opposing, on behalf of one of his creditors, the discharge of his bankruptcy. He failed to pay a five per cent commission to a real estate agent who sold a hotel for $33,000 for him in Victoria, Alta., and also failed to pay for an advertisement placed in the Edmonton Journal.

Once, on a highway near Edmonton, he became angered when stopped by police because his truck was overloaded. He tried to dump the load on the patrol car.

REPAIR BILL
Other troubles included failure to pay a car repair bill, a garnishee on his wages, and a number of ventures that were unsuccessful.

He was a trucker at heart after starting at trucking work on the Alaska Highway in 1941 when he was 20.

He said he paid his wife $25 a month after their separation and lived himself on less than $100 a month.

SECURITY GUARD
When he came to Edmonton from Bonnyville, his birthplace, in 1955, he lived in several places. He worked as a security guard at the Edmonton municipal airport.

A gravel-hauling business he started in the city paid little. A 1956 truck he bought for that purpose was eventually repossessed.

When he declared bankruptcy, his assets were estimated at $1,200 and his liabilities at more than $7,000.

In Britain

Seamen's Strike Spreads

LONDON (Reuters) — British seamen's strike spread today as more ships left idle by shore-based crews jammed the nation's major ports.

The shipping companies estimated that 430 ships now are involved in the walkout which continued to spread as other ships completed overseas voyages and their crews left.

About 12,000 of the 62,500 members of the National Union of Seamen now are on strike, pressing their demand for better pay and shorter hours.

Pagoda 'Eye' in Hurricane of War

ing for the pagoda's red tiled roof. I joined them.

Peterson is a very big fellow and he was waving a white handkerchief. I thought it looked a little ridiculous but it seemed to work.

We were lonely innocent bystanders. Only rebel soldiers, eyeing us warily, peeped the streets and alleys. We ran up against the pagoda wall.

Rebels peered over at us. They helped us over some barbed wire. Bullets zipped overhead.

A young Buddhist leader started at me. Asked how many casualties the rebels had suffered, he replied, "Why do you Americans allow this?"

Then he said 10 were dead and 170 wounded. I made my way through a confused flow of Boy Scouts, teen-age nurses' aides, praying monks, chanting youths and young men with rifles. I tried to count the wounded and the dead.

I say women and children horribly maimed. I examined the pagoda. No shell marks. The marines had carefully avoided hitting the sacred area. Anything else was fair game. Peterson's little band decided to leave.

This time he tied the handkerchief to a stick for better visibility. We backtracked our way in. Our hand grew nervous when we approached the marine lines. They had the big guns and we had seen what they could do.

We passed sizzling, popping power lines cut by bullets. We moved around the rebel barricades of chains, talismans, scrap metal. I examined the almost geometric pattern the bullets cut into the walls of houses.

I followed Peterson's white flag as we passed a few children covering their ears with their hands, huddled in doorways.

There were sights to remember. An old woman leaning against the wall of a bullet-pocked house, her clothes soaked with blood. She had been hit in the head with shell fragments and she appeared dazed.

There was the 10-year-old boy inside the pagoda, a victim of the day-long battle. Nearby Boy Scouts were making him a coffin — and coffins for victims-to-be.

Another who went through rebel lines was UPI photographer Steve Van Meter who found a government soldier, badly wounded. Four other soldiers put him on a makeshift litter and started across the street. The rebels opened up, killing the wounded man and wounding another.

It was then Van Meter crawled out under fire and dragged a wounded civilian to the side of the road.

It was tense going and we were glad to get out of it.

Pregnancy Not Very Likely But Check with Doctor

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for menopause to begin with sudden stopping of all periods, or is it always a matter of gradual tapering off of periods? I will soon be 40 and have missed some periods, but do not feel pregnant.—MRS. J.E.B.

Any number of patterns occurs. Abrupt and permanent cessation of periods; abrupt cessation but recurring later; sporadic missing of periods; more frequent periods and more prolonged—this only begins to list the possibilities. At your age, and since your menstrual cycles have continued until recently, pregnancy is possible although not very likely. You should, to be certain, have your doctor check to see whether you are pregnant.

Dear Dr. Molner: Italian ham (Prosciutto) is cured with salt and pepper for a long period. It this is then eaten raw, is there any danger of trichinosis?—J.J.V.

The risk is there—if the pork contained the trichine organism, that type of curing would not destroy it. Cooking is the only way of assuring safety.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband travels and only gets home every six weeks or so. Would there be any harm in taking birth control pills just the days he is home?—MRS. S.L.

They won't work that way. No harm—but no good, either. They have to be taken exactly according to instructions to do what they are supposed to do.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could a pulse throbbing at the back of my head be caused by hardening of the arteries? My doctor diagnosed a pain lower down, at the base of my skull, as tension and gave me tranquillisers. A few days later I noticed this throbbing. At times the hair seems almost to be moving.

I am near 60. Could these symptoms indicate a pre-stroke condition? The throbbing is brief and some days I do not notice it. I do not have high blood pressure.—MRS. H.J.

This more likely is a twitching of muscles which can occur under conditions of tension or worry. The fact that it does not occur every day and does not last long, I think, indicates that no blood vessel disorder is involved and that it is not a sign of an approaching stroke.

blood pressure.—MRS. H.J.

Labor Clashes Intensify

VANCOUVER (CP)—Old and the school board and city labor disputes simmered and several new ones developed as British Columbia's strike season intensified Friday.

Six labor leaders and 24 other persons were ordered to appear in Supreme Court May 30 to face contempt proceedings arising from picket line disturbances last week at the Lenkurt Electric Co. plant in suburban Burnaby.

They must appear to show cause why they should not be imprisoned, fined or receive other penalties for alleged contempt of two Supreme Court orders barring picketing of the plant by the electrician's union and other labor organizations. Nine persons were arrested during last week's incidents and charged with assault and obstruction.

ROVING PICKETS

About 100 of the Lenkurt workers, who walked out of the plant to protest the company's overtime policy last month and were subsequently fired, threw up a roving picket line in downtown Vancouver to tell the public their side of the story.

Vancouver's Civic Outside Workers' strike, meanwhile, is into its second week, with no sign of a settlement.

The Vancouver Junior Chamber of Commerce has decided to go ahead with its planned emergency garbage collection service this weekend, despite threats of violence.

The Bigger Frog

EVERY NOW and then General Charles de Gaulle, the president of France, does something that shakes the faith of those who are, have been or want to be his friends. Every once in a while the general, whose wartime courage and exile from his Nazi-occupied country won the admiration and sympathy of many besides loyal Frenchmen, makes some move which offends and frightens allies.

He has done it again.

This time it is his neighbor, West Germany, which his particularly tough brand of diplomacy has shaken. This is a great pity, because the hard-won accord fashioned by former chancellor Dr. Konrad Adenauer and the French president is by no means iron-bound. The sensitive West Germans are not likely to bow meekly to any affront.

What the French president has done in this instance is declare a deadline, July 1, for a West German decision, in the clearest terms, as to whether or not it will continue to make welcome on its soil the 70,000 troops in two French army divisions and three tactical air force wings.

The issue, of course, results from General de Gaulle's decision to withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, so that, in effect, French forces on German soil resume their original role as an army of occupation rather than a NATO ally's aid in a West European defence force. The general has apparently rejected, and roughly, any form of disguised integration between French units and those of NATO partners.

In the circumstances, it is very likely that Bonn will suggest to President de Gaulle that he pack up his military kitbag and go home.

The de Gaulle strategy, in this instance, as in his decision to quit NATO and deny to NATO forces any space on French soil, hints at his preoccupation with closer ties to Moscow rather than the West.

He must be well aware that such rapprochement would nuzzle the United States—something at which he seems expert—and cause West Germans to move closer to their American allies with inevitable damage to the Bonn-Paris accord.

His attitude towards the British ambition to gain membership in the European Common Market has caused a cooling of relations with London, too. The general, it seems, is determined to make himself the biggest frog in the European puddle at whatever the cost in friendships.

The thought recurs: Is this great patriot truly a staunch defender of the Western faith? Or is he, as some of his erstwhile friends in the United States see him, no more than an ambitious politician, an astute opportunist prepared to sacrifice Western solidarity to the glory of de Gaulle?

The general appears to be deliberately kicking apart the foundations of a dream of a United States of Europe, so dear to the late Sir Winston Churchill and to many another statesman of vision in the European capitals.

It is always dangerous to destroy one's shelter until some adequate substitute is built. The French president undoubtedly has an alternative in mind; but whether it will be strong enough to stand the strains and stresses of an uneasy political climate only experience will show. Meanwhile, he takes grave risks.

Due for an Overhaul?

EARLIER THIS WEEK Professor L. J. Wong, chairman of the University of British Columbia's commerce department who has spent four years directing a Colombo Plan project in the field, expressed the view that Canada must send more aid to Southeast Asia.

He is by no means alone in his feeling that this country could well afford to extend and enlarge its programs of financial and technical assistance to the underdeveloped nations of the world.

However, it should not be assumed that Canada has been ungenerous in its contributions in the past. On the contrary it has been one of the major providers of funds and experts to the Colombo Plan.

From the inception of the Colombo scheme in 1950 Canada has donated well over $500,000,000 to the developing nations in Southeast Asia, the bulk of this aid going to India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

Nor is this the only area of Canadian assistance. The emerging Commonwealth nations of Africa and the Caribbean have also received tens of millions worth of financial and technical aid from the Canadian government.

In the fiscal years 1965-66 and 1966-67 alone Canada has earmarked nearly $200,000,000 for foreign aid programs and more than $120,000,000 in special assistance loans to emerging countries.

Certainly this is a record of which every Canadian can be proud. And though few complaints can be laid against the amount of Canadian aid provided there may be room for criticism as to the type of assistance given. Canada, for instance, is spending several millions of dollars in training soldiers in Ghana and establishing an air force for Tanzania.

With all signs pointing to the probability of a continent-wide famine striking Africa within the next decade surely Canadian aid should now be channelled along more productive lines.

True, this is but one example of misdirected assistance. But the fact that one exists gives rise to the thought that there may be others. Perhaps the time is due for a thorough review and overhaul of Canada's whole program of foreign aid.

British Authorities Concerned At China's Aggressive Gestures

By MAX FREEDMAN from London

THE news from China is causing British officials serious concern. Their particular anxiety concerns detailed and circumstantial reports that China has been engaged in border forays against India that may be the prelude to a new assault on that country that would at once create immediate and important problems for both Washington and London.

As seen here, the new threat has nothing to do with the highly publicized emergence of China as a nuclear power, even in the most fragmentary sense. With a greater candor than is usually displayed by American officials, British officials concede that China is about 10 years ahead of Western estimates in the development of atomic and nuclear power. But China does not need these new weapons to be the dominant Asian power in a military sense.

Asian power in a military sense since her existing military strength in conventional arms already gives her that position. China for the foreseeable future — by which British experts mean the next 25 years — will be unable to challenge or rival American power in the air or in the ability to deliver weapons of destruction by long-range missile systems. For the next few years the significance of China's periodic nuclear explosions is to be measured in their political and psychological effects rather than in their military results.

But the threats against India, the British believe, may well be more than a bluff.

New York's Young Mayor Lindsay Rides Bravely to a Hard Crusade

By MARQUEE CHILDS

THIS reporter many years ago spent a day with the late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia on his appointed rounds as he scoured the wrongdoers. To move about the city of New York with Mayor John V. Lindsay is to understand that nothing has really changed. It has just grown bigger, more complex and, in the gloomy view, more nearly insoluble.

Visitors from around the country get part of their satisfaction in reviling this cosmopolis — the cluttered and dirty streets, the quickie strikes, high prices and poor service. But New York, because it is the biggest, exhibits in exaggerated form the dilemma that besets almost every city in the United States. What is new in New York is Lindsay, a crusader who believes that the ills of the city can be licked.

It is easy to discount this handsome, rather impulsive new mayor. He is a legendary air, somewhere between Childie Harold and Jack the Giant Killer, which lends itself to caricature. But he is intensely earnest, and he is putting together a first class administration that may be able to get on with the job if the system does not, as it so often has in the past, block the way.

The base of the system is, of course, the division of powers between the state government in Albany and the city administration. A further complication for Lindsay is the fact that the city council has a Democratic majority, with the council president, Frank D. O'Connor, having his eye fixed firmly on the governorship race in the fall. At times it seems to the harassed mayor, who left a secure and comfortable seat in Congress for his present office, that the system is designed to frustrate any action.

The crux of the matter at the moment is the mayor's tax program. He and the able board of estimates have brought into city hall put together — a tax package designed to yield about $300,000,000. This is essential to save the city from bankruptcy before even a start is made on some of the improvements so badly needed. Grudgingly, the board of estimates has agreed to levy the highest rate of interest in 34 years — 4.24 per cent as compared to 3.1 per cent a year ago.

Part of the tax package is a city income tax applied — and this the mayor considers vital — to commuters who earn their living here as well as to city residents. It would yield $385,000,000.

This is where New York's problem is simply a reflection on an oversize scale of what is happening in every other city. If the millions of workers who pour into the metropolis each working day from Connecticut, New Jersey and Westchester County are exempted from the tax, the flight from the city by families in the middle and upper income brackets will become a panic rush.

The tax structure to sustain the services of a metropolitan area will be eroded away as the central city is left with low income families suffering from high unemployment and the ills of slum life. This has already been happening to an alarming degree, not only here but throughout the country.

The council has approved the Lindsay tax package with the suggestion that the city's budget of more than $4 billion be cut by $100,000,000. The income tax take would then be out proportionately. But Lindsay, who has his experts combing the budget for weeks, believes that such ground if China goes on the military rampage. It is being said here that China "is trying on both London and Washington for size" to see how they react to any aggressive moves by Peking. In the light of recent events the unexpected decision by China to refuse a visa to Mr. Jo Grimond, the leader of the British Liberal Party, for a three or four weeks' visit, is being given a new and disturbing emphasis. British officials are saying that China did not want an experienced and eminent observer of Mr. Grimond's stature, whose views on China would be given world-wide publicity, interviewing people in Peking while important changes in Chinese policy are being planned. It should be emphasized that the Chinese refusal to admit Mr. Grimond was made after the British government had made strenuous and repeated efforts on his behalf both with the Chinese embassy in London and directly with the authorities in Peking.

As in Washington, officials in London remember that China stopped her attacks on India the last time when it became clear that Britain and America would not stand idly by while this aggression was taking place. Once again these two governments will have to rally to India's side if China is to be prevented from broadening her present border raids into a calculated military assault.

China is again defying her border forays by claiming that they are not aimed at India. It will be extremely hard for President Johnson to control the extremists who are urging stern action against China before she becomes a developed nuclear power. Until now it has been possible for President Johnson and Mr. Deane Rusk to use the argument that China talks tough but acts cautiously. That argument will fall to the ground if China goes on the military rampage.

Fine Arts

Reputation Deserved

Since its conception in the 1930s, the Banff School of Fine Arts has gone from strength to strength.

Further evidence of its importance is provided by the current $1,100,000 program for expansion of its facilities. This expansion is necessary because of the school's continuing success in attracting students for its variety of summer courses in the fine arts.

This year, some 1,100 young people from every province and from beyond Canada's borders will register at the school. This is a testament to the fact that it is no mere regional institution, it has become a school of international repute.

The setting, one of the loveliest on the globe, is one which goes far to ensure the school's popularity. But equally important is the fact that this institution is able to attract to its faculty men and women of the highest calibre, not only from Canada but from other countries as well.

It deserves its high reputation. It is a cultural asset of which both Albertans and Canadians may be justly proud.

Canada's Eskimos and Indians

Northland Formula Promises New Help

By J. MELLING

This is the concluding instalment of an article reprinted from Race, the Journal of The Institute of Race Relations, London. The author is dean of degree studies in extension at McMaster University.

IN surveying the developments of the last two or three years, we seem to have evidence of a new dawn for Indian-Eskimo affairs. Evidence of this dawn has been supplied in this article. But careful reading of the text will show that so far it represents almost nothing more than a promise of things to come. It has so far yielded only a few results.

For example, in the case of housing, the minister of citizenship and immigration announced last autumn that he will seek approval for an additional $2 million for Indian housing this year; shortly afterwards, the minister of northern affairs and national resources promised $12 million to provide 1,560 new houses for Eskimos over the next five years and a further $2 million "subsidy" per annum.

These are still promises rather than results, and, in any event, they provide no solution to the more important question of how to enable Indians and Eskimos to occupy and even own their homes by means which do not embed them still further in a "subsidy-economy".

The national housing authority in Canada — the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation — is rather inflexible in the standards (as distinct from the type) of housing which it will recognize for the purposes of loans to local housing authorities. This standard of house is well outside the pockets of nearly all Indians and Eskimos. Equally, Eskimo community councils and Indian band councils are not recognized by the CMHC as public housing agencies; hence, these councils are ineligible for housing loans.

Only in Northern Saskatchewan has any CMHC money reached the native people for housing purposes, and that loan was underwritten by a co-operative organization.

In the area of social services the situation is just as unsatisfactory, except that in a few provinces arrangements have been made through the Indian affairs branch for the provision of child-care services to the reserves by children's aid societies. A few trained social workers are attached both to the Indian affairs and the northern administration branches, but almost everywhere officials quite untrained for social work operation — Mounted Police officers, Hudson's Bay Company factors, ordinary administrators of the branches — are having to try to cope with delinquency, corrections, rehabilitation, issue of relief, helping people straighten out the problems arising in families separated by illness, death or other circumstances, adoption, care of children in orphanages and so forth. The prospects for improvement in this whole area depend largely upon the strengthening of the provincial and territorial responsibilities to Indians which they cannot yet discharge very adequately even for non-Indians.

Under the terms of the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act, only one program — it should be recalled — is so far being used on behalf of the native peoples. "Program 5" whose chief importance still (despite the useful start it has given to the training of unemployed Indian and Metis youth) lies in its offering a precedent for the inclusion of persons of Indian ancestry in the other programs of the project.

Concerning industrial development on the reserves, all that can be said has been said already. National faced and monetary policy is a responsibility of the federal government; but outside this field, economic planning and development functions belong to the provincial governments which, however, as previously stated, have no constitutional jurisdiction over Indians. On the other hand, the agreements which brought provincial governments into partnership with the federal Indian affairs branch in such ad hoc programs as wild crop harvesting and fur conservation have now been extended to allow for provincial exercise of economic planning and development functions over Indian reserves, whose well-being is inextricably connected with that of the surrounding territory. In Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan these functions are now being exercised. But noteworthy results are not yet forthcoming, and, unless ARDA committees come to the rescue with the Indian affairs branch contracting with the committees to provide money from its own budget — the question will still need to be asked: Where is the capital to come from which will assist a major economic development on the reserves?

The rather impressive performance of the Eskimo co-operatives in the last few years and the close identity which has been observed to exist between the memberships of co-operative directing boards and of the local Eskimo community councils suggest that, if the Eskimos are given a greater measure of self-government, they would rise to the occasion. Except for those of Indian background outside the reserve system, the same thing could not so confidently be said of the Indian population, since this system — as we have shown — has retarded dependency, stifled initiative, and bred an apathy which will be immensely difficult to dispel. Nevertheless, there is no cure for irresponsibility but stronger and stronger doses of responsibility. As the government clearly says, the Indian band councils too must be more and more trusted to respond effectively to the challenges of their situation. The probability, however, is that solutions will come piecemeal and by cultural limitation.

Further, the movement of change which, for the white settlers and immigrants, has been from east to west may now, for the native peoples, be from north to south.

An important conclusion to which we came after analysing the historical background of Canadian native affairs was that a uniform official policy for Indians and Eskimos is not at present feasible.

Tough programs must increasingly be directed towards integrating all the native groups within the nation, and towards making available to the general services which other Canadians receive, some special permissive services must meanwhile be provided and some of these should be special to particular groups of the native people at some particular time.

For instance, the same financial arrangements for developing producer and consumer co-operatives as have succeeded with the Eskimos (and Metis) may not, at this moment, be reproduced with equal success among the Indians. A series of economic, political and social changes that ended the Indian's place in his own country and that led white settlers to place him where he was disabled from changing himself probably now requires that the Indian should take up the opportunities for change rather more cautiously than did the Eskimos. Two points need to be stressed. Politically, the Indians are powerless; economically, they are not indispensable. Though twenty times as numerous as the Eskimos, they are much more widely dispersed and nowhere form — as the Eskimos in the North West Territories form — a large minority within a political division of the country. Hence, while Eskimos constitute a vital component of the membership of the N.W.T. council, Indians are almost negligible in other assemblies of the nation. Again, while Eskimos are going to be desperately needed to man the prospective industrial developments in the Arctic (since no other economic agents would be so effective in such an environment), the Indians could almost be done without, remaining on the sidelines without serious damage to anyone but themselves.

This is what is perilous in Canadian native affairs. The Indians may remain quite peripheral to the interests and preoccupations of almost all Canadians and, in a sense, become expendable. Fortunately, there was a very strong statement of policy, on September 18, 1958, by the then deputy minister of northern affairs and commissioner of the North West Territories, Mr. Gordon Robertson; and this policy appears to have strongly marked both the Diefenbaker and Pearson administrations in their activity north of the sixtieth latitude.

"It is clear that government, in its role under our philosophy, not only provides the basic services expected of government, such as health, education, law and order and necessary administrative and regulatory services but in a number of other ways can do much to provide the basis for the industry and finance that can then carry forward with resource development."

Y should like to add, however, that, in relation to northern development, the federal government has a special and inescapable responsibility to one particular sector of the Canadian public — the native peoples of the north. The standard of living of the northern Indians and of our Canadian Eskimos is far below the national average — indeed below what is regarded as poverty anywhere else . . .

The obligation of government is clear and inescapable. For it, the immediate human problem must never be subordinated to the requirements of "physical resource development."

Because these have not proved mere words, there is promise that what has been so well begun among the native peoples of the Arctic may spread to those of the south, helping to liberate and revitalize the Indian communities there and beginning the long, slow process of eroding an unfriendly public's prevalent neglect.

What Has Industry Accomplished?

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

New Ottawa Department $126,000,000 Investment

OTTAWA — In business two years and 10 months, the new industry department represents a $126,000,000 public investment.

It opened shop in the last half of 1963 with Parliament investing an initial $15,000,000. Another $25,000,000 was voted in 1964-65. A further $36,000,000 was added in 1965-66.

And now Parliament is in the process of examining industry's operations before providing another $50,000,000 needed for 1967-68.

So what's the taxpayer got for his $126,000,000?

The Opposition doesn't know, for all it gets out of the department's estimates is what industry's costing.

But it's always suspicious that the government not having to show a profit or even a balanced accounting, really doesn't mind short-weighting the taxpayer.

Last of a Series

So the Opposition grills Industries Minister Drury on the basis that the answer to the $126,000,000 question about this department is "Not much," or at best, "Not enough."

The department, of course insists the answer's "Plenty," that the public well-served by industry is getting its every nickel's worth out of that $126,000,000.

Well, who's right?

Parliament has passed industry's estimates before, and will again this time, indicating some sort of grudging approval of the department.

But that doesn't prove anything except that the opposition lacks the information, the time and perhaps the talent to dig out the answer.

And so it remains a matter of debate.

In the assignment Parliament gave industry when it set up the new department in July of 1963, there's a lot of high-sounding generality, difficult if not impossible to pin down as to results produced.

Such as the department being directed to: "... promote the establishment, growth, efficiency and improvement of manufacturing industries in Canada; and ... develop and carry out such programs and projects as may be appropriate.

"... assist the adaptation of manufacturing industries to changing conditions in the domestic and export markets, and to changes in techniques of production.

"... identify and assist those industries that require special measures to develop an unrealized potential or to cope with exceptional problems of adjustments ..."

There are other, similarly broad directions.

What's been industry's response?

● Its automotive adjustment assistance board has made 13 loans worth $11,000,000.

BACKGROUND

Chinese Explosion Well Above Original Estimates

By RUDY ABRAMSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The nuclear explosion triggered by Communist China May 9 was far more powerful than originally estimated, the Atomic Energy Commission announced today.

The new estimates put the force of the explosion at the equivalent of from 200,000 to a million tons of TNT.

The AEC said in a statement that "information now available from the May 9 Chinese Communist test indicates that the yield was in the lower end of the intermediate range."

This would mean the device had the explosive power of 200 kilotons to one megaton, making it at least 10 times as powerful as originally estimated in the United States.

A kiloton is equivalent to the explosive power of 1,000 tons of TNT, and a megaton is a million tons.

Although the AEC said it is standing by its original statement that the third test did not employ a hydrogen bomb, the revised estimate renewed speculation on whether the Chinese have developed a thermonuclear weapon.

in Guelph, Ont., and then dropped everything to move to Brantford, Ont.

Guelph was booming and so, non-designated.

Brantford thought it too was booming and was surprised to discover itself designated.

It greeted the news with a mixture of astonished dismay and delight.

And bemused, The Brantford Expositor ran a page of pictures parading its prosperity with the caption: "Who's Depressed?"

Guelph, Kitchener, Galt, Waterloo, Stratford, Preston, Woodstock, Dunnville, Paris are booming.

If you're "designated," then industry induces manufacturers and other enterprises to set up shop in your town.

The ball: tax concessions.

What's been the gain?

In 30 months, 450 new plants worth $885,300,000 have moved into "designated" areas providing 30,400 new jobs.

The catch word there is "moved."

For all of these plants aren't "new," and neither are the jobs they provide.

Some of them, grabbing the chance to get new plants that come with tax abatements in these designated areas, have simply pulled up stakes in non-designated regions and moved.

Prize example was the industry that had bought the land and started construction

Ferry Talks To Continue

Further meetings have been scheduled by a special labor-management committee which is dealing into the summer shift schedules being operated by the B.C. Ferries.

The four-man committee, composed of two members each from the ferry authority and the ferry employees, was to have reported Friday to a provincial cabinet sub-committee, as to when its findings would be brought in.

A ferry authority spokesman declined to comment on how the talks were progressing, but said Attorney-General Bonner, chairman of the cabinet sub-committee, had been advised that "further meetings are scheduled."

Several hundred ferry workers who were unhappy with the summer shift schedules had asked for a board of reference to hear their case. But the

Friend's Offer to Drive Refused by Accused

A man charged with criminal negligence twice refused a friend's offer of a ride just hours before he was involved in an accident on Esquimalt Road in which Daniel George was fatally injured.

The preliminary hearing of Brian McMillan, 175 Bushby, before Magistrate William Ostler in central magistrate's court.

Harvey Johnson said Friday that he offered McMillan a ride after they left the Six-Mile House April 22.

McMillan pulled behind the stopped car as if it was moving, Mr. Johnson said, and smashed into the rear.

Two girls, Lina Nobbs and Barbara Womball, said they saw McMillan's car mount the curb about 50 yards before it hit the other car.

Constable Barry English said he gave McMillan a breathalyzer test and received a reading of .19 per cent.

Constable Douglas Sproston said McMillan told him he saw some brake lights ahead of him and he hit the vehicle. He could not remember anything else.

The hearing will continue June 1. McMillan has also been charged with impaired driving.

A youth who stole a car because he wanted a ride home pleaded guilty to theft of the car and to dangerous driving.

A REMAND Brian Navratil, 18, 2220 Arbutus, was remanded to May 27 for a pre-sentence report.

Constable Norman Hansen told the court he chased the car along Hillside Thursday night.

Navratil almost lost control of the car several times, hit a pole on Myrtle Street, side-swiped a pole and ended up on a boulevard.

Constable Hansen said Navratil hit speeds between 60 and 70 miles an hour during the chase.

TRAGEDY Magistrate William Ostler said: "It is certainly a modern-day tragedy when a youth steals a car because he does not want to use his legs to walk home."

Two policemen were needed to pull David Larade and Harry Kriwoken apart from their battling on the lawn in front of 1328 Esquimalt Thursday night.

Larade and Kriwoken, both of HMCS Saskatchewan, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and were each fined $75.

COSTLY LIFT Goods worth $242 cost a Victoria woman $150. Mrs. Margaret Grover, address unavailable, was fined this after she had pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

Court was told that Mrs. Grover took the goods from The Bay May 12.

Magistrate Ostler said: "You have reached the end of the line as far as pilfering from shops in this area."

IN POSSESSION Fined for being minors in possession of liquor were Kenneth Boatright, HMCS Mackenzie, $35; James Ross, 467 Fraser, $40.

Fined for careless driving: Brent Ewing, 1554 Craigdarroch, $50; licences suspended for six months; Ralph Schultz, 741 Admirals, $50; Barry Thye, $3A Sims, $50; Glenn Oliphant, 1421 Richardson, $40.

Trading Agency In Montreal Denied by Reds

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet embassy here has decided to enter some indirect, unsworn testimony in the Gerda Munster security inquiry.

A spokesman says Russia didn't have any kind of trading mission stationed in Montreal in 1960.

RCMP reports submitted to the inquiry, now adjourned to 11:30 p.m. Tuesday, state that Mrs. Munster in 1960 lived in a Montreal building at 1420 Tower St. which also housed a Soviet trading company.

APARTMENT Former Conservative justice minister David Fulton cited these reports in his testimony before the inquiry May 9 and referred to a "Soviet trading agency" in the same building where the German divorcee had her apartment.

Other RCMP reports submitted to the inquiry state that Mrs. Munster, who lived in Canada from 1955 to 1961, had worked in Germany for the Russian intelligence service and was a common prostitute and the mistress of Pierre Sevigny, then Conservative associate defence minister.

WATCHED BUILDING Former RCMP commissioner C. W. Harvison testified at the inquiry that the force had the building on Tower Street under surveillance because it contained the premises of known Soviet espionage agents.

He said Mrs. Munster had an apartment in the same building, which has been referred to in newspaper reports as a "house of spies."

A Soviet embassy spokesman said in an interview that Russia had no trading mission in Montreal at that time.

Mrs. Hood, mother of a four-year-old boy, also is a co-accused in Central State College. She says she has to get back to her college books because "I'm right in the middle of final exams now."

"I feel great," she said, after Judge Bob Rudkin dismissed the complaint against her.

Chinese Shrine Rites Sunday

By JIM BRAHAM

In an ancient ceremony predating recorded history, Canada's oldest Chinese shrine — the Shrine of the Holy Spirit — will be rededicated at 11 a.m. Sunday, at 636 Fisgard.

Evil spirits and any lurking ill omens will be driven away from the temple at the

Island Pastors Take Part In Assembly

Pastors and delegates from four Vancouver Island Churches of the Nazarene will take part in the annual Canada Pacific district assembly Thursday and Friday in Abbotsford.

Rev. Roy J. Yelder of Vancouver will give his annual message as district superintendent and will outline plans for next year. District officers will be elected.

Pastors on Vancouver Island are: William Braham, Victoria; Miss Olive Kilshaw, Esquimalt; George Rempel, Port Alberni; and Kenneth Martin, Nanaimo.

Catholics Draw Fewer Converts

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of Roman Catholics in the United States reached a high last year, but conversions to Catholicism dropped to a 12-year low. The number of Catholics went up by 65,556 in 1953 to a high of 46,246,175. Conversions dropped by 3,060 to 123,139, lowest since 1953.

Oregon Choir to Sing

An international emphasis will be given to the Victoria Day Sunday services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when the Oregon choir from Central High School, Independence, Ore., under the direction of R. Krueger, will replace the Sanctuary Choir.

The choir will sing Kyrie, Eleison (Milton Dieterich) and the Last Words of David (Randall Thompson). Dr. McLean's sermon topic will be Words of Life. He will preach at the evening service on Too Much Heaven.

During the morning service at the Metropolitan Church Sunday the congregation, stewards and elders and leaders of the church will come forward as an act of dedication in leadership and responsibility for carrying out beginning of the ceremonies in the traditional Oriental custom of purging the area with fireworks.

The display will take place in front of the temple, located on the top floor of the Chinese public school.

HOURLONG

After the hour-long ceremony, which because of limited space will be attended by invited guests only, the temple will be open to the public.

Among the 160 guests who will be at the ceremony will be Vancouver Chinese Consul-General James Ling, and representatives of various Chinese organizations, according to Jack Lee, president of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, who is in charge of the ceremony.

Temple master David Lee explained the founding of the shrine in Victoria.

CENTRAL PLACE

"When the Chinese pioneers arrived here more than 100 years ago," he said, "they found it necessary to build a shrine to house all the patron saints, so as to have a central place of worship."

"This shrine was opened in 1885 and is an example of Chinese ancestral worship. All the saints and shrines in this temple were once living persons, and through their deeds, they were worshipped by their descendants and followers," he said.

The scrolls and plaques displayed in the temple were presented by the various family associations when the temple originally opened. The calligraphy on the scrolls, as on the plaques, was done by famous Chinese scholars of that era.

The temple master explained that ancestral worship was not a religion in the Occidental sense of the word. "The saints were once mortals and we worship the person, who through their lifetime won renown for their display of love, understanding, loyalty, chivalry and courage," he said.

The five saints worshipped in the temple are:

● Confucius (551-479 B.C.), China's greatest philosopher and teacher of ethics. Today's Chinese literature still includes the study of his works and considers him to be the basis of the Chinese language.

● Kwan Kung (166-219 A.D.), the greatest general of the Three Kingdoms. Because of his loyalty to his country and his integrity as an individual, he was worshipped by all.

● Tien Hou (246-288 A.D.), the most recent to be enshrined. Tien Hou is the patron saint of the seas, and all travellers ask her blessing before embarking on an ocean voyage.

● Choy Bok (254-283 B.C.), the patron saint of businessmen. He was reputed to have amassed a fortune in the steel

Blacksmith Shop Start

Church Celebrates 75th Birthday

A Victoria West church which began in the upstairs of a blacksmith shop, and became the first garrison church, will celebrate the 75th anniversary of its consecration on Sunday.

St. Saviour's Church, at the corner of Henry and Catherine Streets, was consecrated on the sunny morning of May 19 in 1891 — a Tuesday.

The Daily Colonist reported that, although the consecration took place on a week day, the church was fairly well filled.

FIRST BISHOP

The painters had not yet completed their work when the Right Rev. George Hills, first Bishop of British Columbia, entered the newly-built church. Assisted by Rev. W. D. Barber, the bishop consecrated the building.

Because Evensong was a more popular service in those days than at present, "The Rev. A. Beaulieu (at 7:30 p.m.) preached to an audience fully as large and attentive as that in the morning."

NEAT FURNISHINGS

The Colonist described the new church as "very neatly furnished, even in the most minute details — that pretty little edifice so creditable to Victoria West and its inhabitants."

St. Saviour's congregation

first began to meet when nine Esquimalt residents formed the Victoria West Church Mission in 1888. They held their first services in the upstairs of a blacksmith shop, Miss Melissa Harper, 2347 Hamiota, who turned 84 on Thursday — the actual anniversary of the present church — attended Sunday school in the blacksmith shop.

The Carpenters' Reply To Mr. Wheaton

Following the complete breakdown of our negotiations with a committee from the contractors, the carpenters felt duty bound to acquaint the individual employers of carpenters, in an open letter, with the reasons for the present statement.

The union's demand for the reduction in hours supported by 90% of our membership, has proven to be the most contentious issue in our negotiations. Our letter spelled out two possible formulas for reducing the hours of work, each giving the employer at least one year's notice prior to the change of hours taking effect.

We did not develop our arguments as to why we maintain that there is an urgent need for gradually reducing the hours in the next few years, since all arguments dealing with technological change, mechanization and automation, which are abundant, suggest that this is one of the approaches to cope with the resulting displacement of labour and unemployment. We believe this to be vital as a subject for negotiations between employers and their workmen.

Mr. Wheaton in answering our open letter takes the typical position of the top brass employers in naively stating that a reduction in hours is not a subject for discussion either now or in the next few years. On this we disagree and our union is quite firm in its position that shorter hours is an issue and could lead us into a strike unless the employers take a reasonable position and sit down with our union and negotiate a formula.

Mr. Wheaton dealt at some length with the wage improvements made in our agreement two years ago. The carpenters, it should be stated, are still among the bottom three in wage gains made by Building Trades unions in the past 15 years. Two years ago we picked up some of this slack. We hardly think this is a topic for discussion now.

With regards to members desiring overtime work on out-of-town jobs, we can only say that this is regarded as bonus money for living away from home on a very temporary basis and the extra expenses so incurred are thus partially covered. Less than 20% of our members are employed on such jobs and the majority of those would be quite content working regular hours near home.

Had Mr. Wheaton inquired at the union office in Victoria he would have found that we still have a considerable number of unemployed members in this month of May. This is also the case in other areas, and we disclaim that there is a shortage of skilled labour in our trade at this time in B.C.

A. LEAM, Executive Secretary,
B.C. Provincial Council of Carpenters.

Man's History Investor Aid

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

An investment firm has just published a skillfully condensed history of man by which it hopes to put its clients on to a class of stock which will grow with the stupendous growth of world population.

Nesbitt Thomson and Co. Ltd. says that the present population of about 3,400,000,000 will increase to 6,000,000,000 by the end of the century and that the problem of feeding the masses may be almost insoluble.

In this situation, Canada with its vast potential can play an important role, and the investment company single out a number of Canadian companies which will make a vital contribution to the feeding of the masses and which, in doing so, will experience for themselves more than normal growth.

SELECT FEW
The companies selected are Canada Packers, Canadian Industries Ltd., Canadian Pacific Railway, C. A. and S. Steamship Lines, Federal Grain Ltd., Massey Ferguson, Ogilvie Flour Mills and Sherritt Gordon Mines.

Canada Packers, Federal Grain and Ogilvie are directly in the food business; CPR and Canadian Steamships are important cogs in the movement of food; CIL and Sherritt Gordon are manufacturers of fertilizers and other agricultural products; and Massey Ferguson is one of the world's largest farm equipment manufacturing firms.

UP TO SHAREHOLDERS
Shareholders of Pine Point Mines Ltd. are to meet in Vancouver June 3 to consider the agreement to purchase all the mineral claims, claim options and buildings of Pyramid Mines Ltd.

A similar meeting is to be held of the Pyramid shareholders, whose directors have also approved the terms of the merger.

The directors of Pine Point have agreed to make the purchase subject to shareholder consent in exchange for 526,400 shares of Pine Point worth about $34,000,000.

ONE FOR FIVE
This represents one Pine Point share for every five outstanding shares of Pyramid. Pyramid has claims adjoining Pine Point Mines and has lead zinc reserves of 11,000,000 tons.

It is understood that if the agreement is approved Pine Point will announce a consider-

Juniors Outclass Seniors

The seniors may have prestige at Oak Bay High School, but the juniors just aren't impressed.

Juniors posted better times, distances, and heights than the seniors in 11 of 18 events at the Oak Bay intra-mural track and field meet Friday. In girls' competition, the juniors were better than the seniors in six of seven events: the broad jump, high jump, relay, and 60, 100 and 220-yard races.

The junior boys were mathematically superior to their elders in the high jump, triple jump, discus, 400 yards and 440 yards.

House II won the meet with 17½ points. House III was second with 12½, House I had 10½, and House IV 10.

John Hibberston and Bruce Howe tied for the senior boys aggregate award, as did Sally Glover and Allen Davies for the junior girls' title.

Stu Bailey was the junior boys' winner, and Nita Miller took the senior girls' championship.

Royal Oak High Wins District 63 Track Meet

Royal Oak won the District No. 63 junior high school track and field meet at North Saanich School Friday afternoon.

Superiority in field events, particularly in the girls' section, brought Royal Oak the victory with 285½ points. They were given the F. N. Wright Trophy.

Mount Newton runners dominated the track picture to finish a strong second with 273½ points. North Saanich trailed with 218½ points.

Twelve meet records were broken and another tied. Five of the record-smashing performances were in the intermediate boys' races. Five more came in the senior boys' events.

New Deputy Minister Started as Office Boy

A man who started out as an office boy with the department of mines will become deputy minister of that department this year.

He is Kenneth B. Blakey, who is now B.C.'s chief gold commissioner and commissioner under the Petroleum and Natural Gas Act.

Mines Minister Brothers announced Friday that Mr. Blakey will be appointed deputy minister, when Patrick Mulcahy retires as deputy minister of mines and petroleum resources.

IN THE FALL

It is believed this will occur at the end of October.

Mr. Blakey entered government service in 1923, when he was hired as an office boy in the mines department.

He served with the Royal Canadian Navy in the North Atlantic and the British Isles from 1939 to 1945, and held the rank of lieutenant-commander upon his discharge from active service.

SINCE '58

Mr. Blakey then returned to the mines department, where he was appointed deputy chief commissioner of petroleum and natural gas on April 1, 1954. He has held his present position since 1958.

Mines Minister Brothers also announced that a number of staff changes will be made in the department when Mr. Blakey attains his new office.

But the nature of those changes was not disclosed at this time.

Although Mr. Mulcahy reached compulsory retirement age some time ago, he remained at his post because his services were still needed by the department.

Pedestrian Injured

A pedestrian received minor leg injuries when he was knocked down at Cook and Mears Thursday night.

Tommy Happynook, 31, 1040 Burdette, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital. Police identified the driver of the car as Mary Leontuk, 1111 Chapman.

France Said Determined To Do Tests

PARIS (Reuters) — France will carry out four nuclear tests in the Pacific this summer.

The French armed forces ministry and the foreign ministry declined comment.

The French government has already issued official warning of impending nuclear testing to shipping and air traffic of countries bordering the Pacific.

Do You Know?

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN IMITATION AND GENUINE IMPORTED DANISH FURNITURE?

The so-called Danish Furniture may mean that it is styled to imitate true Danish, and does not necessarily mean that it is a true Danish import.

When buying Danish furniture be sure to look for the DANISH CONTROL TAG, which guarantees that the article is inspected and approved by a Danish Government Engineer and is of the highest quality.

All our furniture has this DANISH CONTROL FLAG, ensuring quality material and workmanship.

SAIL TO HAWAII!

P&O-Orient's S.S. Iberia
leaves Vancouver on June 22
- 8 days for as little as $160

Enjoy a glorious Pacific holiday on one of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas"—and see San Francisco and Los Angeles on your way to Honolulu. Your fare starts at just $17 a day!

First, your P&O-Orient liner sails down the coast from Vancouver. You'll have a day and a night in San Francisco and a day in Los Angeles.

Then, she glides out toward open sea. You'll have lovely sunlit days to unwind. Relax. There are acres of deck space for games and dances. Two swimming pools. Dinners that can run to six courses.

Friendly British service
Service on P&O-Orient liners is fast, friendly and delightfully

British. You'll meet fascinating people from every part of the world. Underwater stabilizers insure smooth sailing. You'll sleep like a baby—and arrive in Honolulu rested and ready for the second half of your holiday.

See your travel agent soon. He has all the additional information you'll need and he's a whiz at getting you organized. Then, run away to sea with P&O-Orient!

All fares in U.S. dollars

OREGON

OREGON'S CHARM GOES DEEPER THAN THE SURFACE. Less than 50 miles southwest of Grants Pass lies Oregon Caves National Monument, where guided tours take you through a marble-wonderland in caverns deep in the heart of the Siskiyou Mountains of Southern Oregon.

At Farewell Bend on the turbulent Snake River, the wagon trains of the Oregon Trail pioneers left the waterway as it turned north to plunge into Hells Canyon. A historical marker indicates the start of their overland trek toward the Willamette Valley settlements.

Unspoiled Oregon offers scenery, points of interest and activities to match your every mood, no matter how varied. Smooth highways take you quickly the length and breadth of this 96,000-square-mile vacationland. You may enjoy summer skiing at the 10,000-foot level on majestic Mt. Hood, and a few hours later be exploring the beaches and headlands of Oregon's famed sea-coast. Enjoy the bracing air of Oregon's high eastern plateaus—or the calm of forested slopes of the western valleys. The two are just an easy drive apart. Attractions that are natural, historic, or the latest made by man invite you to beautiful, uncrowded Oregon. There's fun for the whole family. Come to Oregon soon.

Mother Courage Cast Does Brecht Justice

DDF Final Festival
By Patrick O'Neill

John Ferns and Lucille Walker in London play

Mother Courage wheeled her rugged old cart from the 17th century to the stage of McPherson Playhouse Friday, and received a warm welcome.

Lucille Walker played the Bertolt Brecht heroine, who herds her little family in the wake of first one army, then another in the business of doing business. London Little Theatre supported her with a cast of more than 20, in the epic theatre performance.

GOOD SHOW

"This was a very good show of Mother Courage and Her Children," Marius Goring told the Dominion Drama Festival audience.

He said despite a certain loss in translation, the performance did justice to Mother Courage, which is "Brecht at his very best."

FAST START

The Brecht production caught the members of the audience off-guard as they entered the auditorium.

The curtain was already up, and Mother Courage's wagon was on the stage.

HOUSE LIGHTS UP

All left curtains were removed, showing a skeleton of stage machinery and lighting.

The play with the house-lights on, as cast members came on and casually dressed the stage, announcing the author and the play.

DONE TWICE

But the adjudicator criticised the introduction of the characters to the audience. He said the opening scene then introduces all the characters again, in Brecht's own way.

The special introduction said Mr. Goring, "rather spoiled Mother Courage's first entrance."

LETTERS PROJECTED

As the houselights went down, the story of the bribing, profiteering Mother Courage and her place in the 30 years war began to unfold.

Each scene was introduced by lettering projected on a scrim in front of the playing area.

NEWSREEL

From time to time, news-reel clips were thrown on the stage, to show a more modern war with its blasting guns and flying bombs.

Mr. Goring said some inventions in the production he liked, and some he did not. He criticised the films,

Robin Dearing, Hargreaves in Mother Courage

because "they didn't tell us anything." Mr. Goring said "this addition of film is a little old-fashioned. It was used in the political theatre before Brecht's time. Brecht would have discarded it."

Mr. Goring said Brecht is always very clear about what he means. There is no change of meaning what he says. "I cannot see the point of these films of a more modern war."

SOME HORROR

And there were songs, some half-spoken, most sung with a rough boldness, detailing the philosophy of the characters in the great war between Sweden and Poland.

There were moments of poetry, of crudeness, of comedy. And there were moments that held horror, and brought gasps from the audience.

WHEELS OVER EUROPE

Through all the stage-pacidity of epic theatre went Mother Courage's wagon, criss-crossing Europe, following the armies, caught first on one side, then on the other.

Mr. Goring said there was too much playing to the audience. Although Brecht wrote in a cabaret style this "cannot be overdone," said Mr. Goring.

KATRIN Praised

He said he was delighted with one actress, Robin Dearing as Katrin, who completely avoided this style.

Miss Dearing played the mute daughter of Mother Courage; the character is shot while warning a sleeping town of a surprise attack.

MOTHER SLENDID

Lucille Walker in the title role "gave an excellent, splendid performance."

Mr. Goring's criticism was that she seemed to have "too good a heart." He said she didn't change quite enough in her acting through the scenes covering many years.

TOO NICE

John Ferns as the Cook "wasn't quite fat enough. He didn't have quite enough authority."

Stan Lacey as the chaplain gave a "very good" performance. Dennis Mills as Elafi, the warlike son of Mother Courage, was told he was too nice. He should have been the sort of person "who would commit any crime."

On the other hand, Norman Hargreaves as the other son, Swiss Cheese, was too bright. The adjudicator felt Brecht was saying the Swiss are a bit like their cattle.

The soldiers were "exceedingly good" at the beginning. Mr. Goring said as the play progressed, the quality of soldiery declined. . . . "possibly the result of 30 years of campaigning."

GOOD WITHOUT KNACK Mr. Goring said Cecilia Smith as Yvette looked good, but "didn't have the knack of putting over a number."

Mother Courage, unlike most of Brecht's plays, can be enjoyed and discussed as a work of art, and not for political content, the adjudicator said.

"The only politics in this play are the politics of hating war . . . something on which I'm sure we're all agreed."

Director Loves Excitement of New Script

Six Rewrites in Search of an Award

When director Maurice Evans first saw the script of A Stranger Unto My Brethren, he was so doubtful about it that he refused to let the actors read it before the first casting.

Now, six rewrites later, the play is trying for awards in the DDF final.

The director found it an exhilarating experience, working with author John Burgess.

Winner

"He would telephone me and ask me if he could come to rehearsals and I appreciated it," said Mr. Evans. "I worked with an author before who kept breathing down my neck all the time."

Mr. Evans has already hit the top in DDF competition. Two years ago, he directed the Barn group in Toronto in A Taste of Honey, which took first place in the DDF final at Charlottetown, and won most of the other awards too.

Two Weeks

But Mr. Evans said that doesn't compare with the excitement of working with a new script.

Producer Ruth Green said the group went into rehearsal at the beginning of January, and had only two weeks constant rehearsing before the first production.

Changes

She said there have been several cast changes during the four month working period that led to Victoria.

Rehearsing a new play some odd side effects, as actress Emma Levine discovered.

She plays the mother. There was some discussion over the suitability of the character's name.

Mother Emma

"One night John Burgess called me up," she said. "He told me, Emma, can we call the mother Emma? Would you mind?"

Green and Evans

The director explained how the play came into being.

Understanding

"John (Burgess) wanted to write a play about the need for people to understand each other."

"He first thought of a play about Negroes, but that has been overdone. Then he considered a play about Jews, but that didn't come off, either."

Research

"Finally he decided to do a play about homosexuals. He did a lot of research, and wrote the first draft of A Stranger Unto My Brethren."

Next year, the complexion of Toronto theatre will change a great deal.

New Scripts

The Central Ontario zone officials have hit upon an unusual way of screening plays. They have accepted four new scripts. These will be the only plays produced in the zone DDF competition.

They will hire four "name" professional directors, and the directors will cast from actors of various clubs.

Among those who aren't waiting to see their fears about his system realized, are Maurice Evans and Ruth Green.

Crest Theatre, the professional company in Toronto, will be off the regular scene next year.

Mr. Evans hopes to step into the gap.

New Group

He and Ruth Green will be part of a company that will start with professional theatre this summer.

They intend to do Taste of Honey and The Knack, and will try to firmly establish a new professional group in Toronto.

'Merger'

The new company will be called Merger Productions (first four letters are initials of the founders).

"Maybe it's just a dream," said Ruth Green, "but we've staked a lot on it. We've quit our jobs, so it better succeed!"

Will they do Canadian plays?

Time for Tomatoes

By M. V. CHESNUT

In looking over yesterday's column, it seems to me that while I provided fairly complete instructions for setting out tomato plants raised at home from seed, I didn't give much guidance for the fellow who goes out and buys a dozen plants and bungs them in the ground.

First, we'd better go shopping for tomato plants, and the first thing to consider is variety. In our climate, it is best to stick to kinds which can set their blossoms and ripen their fruit under fairly cool conditions. Almost any variety will do well in a long, hot summer, but there are many Eastern types which fail to ripen any fruit at all if the weather should be cool and rainy.

Some good ones are Early Amateur, Stonor's M.P., Quebec No. 5, Rhode Island Hybrid Wonder Boy, Hybrid Early Delicious, Sutton's Best of All, Early Bush Beefsteak (not just plain Beefsteak) and, of course, my own favorite, Starfire. I wouldn't say Starfire grows any better than the others, but for my money it packs more flavor than any tomato I have ever grown.

In selecting your plants, I think you will have better luck with the smaller specimens rather than the big fellows. The greenhouse operators don't sow all their seeds at one go, but stagger their plantings over a month or more, and it is the younger, smaller plants from the later sowings which will settle down best, with all the resiliency of youth.

Novice gardeners will usually go for the biggest plants they can find, and will especially seek out and buy tomato plants already carrying a cluster of open blossoms, on the theory these plants will start making fruit almost immediately. Trouble is, such big, blossom plants will usually abort their blossoms from shock after being set out in the open garden.

There are several other advantages in selecting the smaller plants. For one thing, they haven't had time to exhaust the goodness in the soil and won't be suffering from malnutrition, nor are they too crowded in the box. Small plants suffer far less shock from root disturbance than elderly specimens.

Ideal plants should be short, stout and stocky, with no long expanse of bare, leafless stem. If the stems are hairy and with a pinkish tinge, and if the leaves are covered with a light fuzz, so much the better, as these are signs of glowing health. Avoid plants with a yellowish tinge to the leaf color, or with pale leaves and dark green prominent veins, or those which are becoming thin and spindly at the top.

Cheapest way to buy plants is by the dozen, with the dealer digging them out of the box and wrapping them in newspapers to be carried home. The most expensive way is potted up singly in peat pots or veneer plant bands. In between, you will find plants offered by the half-dozen, growing in containers just big enough for six plants.

The dug-up, newspaper-wrapped plants, will grow away in good shape if you get them planted out immediately, but you can't throw the parcel in the back of the car and leave it until the spirit moves you to do some planting, for they will rapidly if planting is delayed. Speed isn't so important with plants growing in containers.

Plants growing in pressed peat pots are set in the ground pot and all, without any root disturbance at all. The theory here is that the walls of the pot decompose in the soil, but I should point out this hasn't worked out in every case. I know of instances where the pots were planted in too-dry soil and, failing to decompose, the plants became root-bound and sick. It is a wise precaution to water these pots generously when planting, with a little fertilizer in the water to speed up decomposition.

The trick I mentioned before—burying a big wad of soggy wet newspapers deep down under each plant—works just as well with purchased plants as with home-grown specimens.

The Little World of Hollywood

Larry's an Affectionate Soul!

By ALEX. FREEMAN

NEW YORK (NANA)—Laurence Harvey is an affectionate soul. Whenever Larry sees someone he really likes—male or female—he kisses them. George Hamilton, one of Larry's favorites, was sitting in a film club with his girl friend, Lynda Johnson, when he saw Larry heading for his table with the kissing look on his face. Positive that Lynda wouldn't understand, Hamilton quickly stood up and grabbed Harvey's hand, applying just enough pressure to keep him out of kissing distance. Then George introduced Larry to Lynda, but he remained standing until Harvey took the hint and left.

The Milos Milos, who has a small role as a Russian sailor named Lysenko in United Artists' "The Russians are Coming," is the Milos Milosovic, who killed the late Mrs. Mickey Rooney, before taking his own life. Apparently producer-director Norman Jewison decided against cutting him out of the picture, which was completed just a few weeks before the tragedy.

The still-lovely Michele Morgan will make her first trip to America in years to promote Lost Command, in which she portrays Anthony Quinn's mistress... Mary Ann Mobley, who was very disappointed over losing the lead in TV's forthcoming, The Girl From U.N.C.L.E., isn't letting it get her down. Mary Ann had to learn karate for her role in Jerry Lewis' new movie, There on a Couch, and enjoyed it so much that she spends every spare moment practicing her newest talent.

I chatted with Arlene Dahl, who is off to France from New York, for what she says is the happiest role of her life. Arlene, newly married and very happy with wine-grower Alexis Lichine, will spend the next six months at the Lichine Chateau—a 14th century Benedictine Priory in the Bordeaux section. Going with the Lichines are Arlene's two children by her previous marriage, Carole Christine Holmes, almost five, Lorenzo Lamas, a proud eight, and Alexis' two children from his first marriage, Sasha, not yet six, and Sandra, eight.

Names in the News

Pony Rewards Parson

LONDON — A church of England minister, believed to be England's only race-horse-owning parson, has finally won a race.

"Splendid, splendid," pronounced Rev. Paul Hoskin in passing judgment on his initial victory. "This should keep my horse in chaff for a few months."

Mr. Hoskin has been the rector of Wicken, a village of 320 souls in Northampton County, since 1934.

An enthusiastic follower of the races and a student of form, the minister bought a four-year-old gelding named Silk Cut last year.

The churchman sent his horse to the post for the first time at Brighton last September, but Silk Cut did not distinguish himself, finishing behind the field.

But the preacher kept on trying. So did the horse.

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Walter Reuther has won an 11th term as president of the 1,400,000-member United Auto Workers, but it's the election of a woman to a high UAW post that is holding delegate interest. The new woman official, the fourth international representative at large, is Miss Olga Madar, 51-year-old head of the UAW's Detroit-based recreation department.

TOKYO — American actor-singer Mel Torme, 40, and British actress Janet Scott, 27, were married here. It was Torme's third marriage and Miss Scott's second.

HOUSTON — Walter L. McCann, the second patient in Methodist Hospital to undergo a partial artificial heart implant, has died. Methodist Hospital said, "the patient had developed complications in the past 48 hours. The probable cause of death was pulmonary insufficiency."

BRISTOL, England — Police battered students who booed and jeered the Duke of Beaufort after he was installed as chancellor of Bristol University.

Jubilant Reuther hugs wife

The students demonstrated against the fox-hunting duke, who holds the traditional title of master of the Queen's horse, because they were not consulted.

VANCOUVER — Allard de Ridder, 79, first conductor of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra and an outstanding figure in the cultural development of the city, has died at his home.

OTTAWA — Speaker Lucien Lamoureux told the Commons a tape recording of the House debate at the time of the bomb explosion in the Parliament buildings will go into the national archives. He was replying to Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre), who noted that recordings are made of Commons business. Mr. Lamoureux said Mr. Knowles had made the suggestion to him in private conversation earlier.

ZOMBA — Parliament elected Prime Minister Hastings Kamuzu Banda as first president-designate of Malawi. The country, which will become a republic within the Commonwealth July 6, got its independence in 1964. Queen Elizabeth II will be retained as colonel-in-chief of the Malawi army.

OTTAWA — The government has been urged by Tom Barnett (NDP-Cornwall-Alberta) to give serious consideration to a proposal that the United Nations be given ownership of the high seas and outer space. Mr. Barnett said the proposal was made by a commission of the United Nations Association of the United States.

VANCOUVER — Prize-winning television producer Tom Conache says Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has dropped him without warning after nine years service. Mr. Conache, 54, said he received notification that his contract was not to be renewed while he was in the middle of filming a major color documentary on the Columbia River for showing next year.

SAIGON — A special military court for economic crimes has sentenced a South Vietnamese Chinese merchant Phung Tham, to death for stockpiling iron to sell on the black market.

PARIS — A former South Vietnamese cabinet minister, Vu Van Mau, says he has protested to the United States against the use of American military power to destroy pagodas sheltering opponents of the Salon government. Vu, secretary of state for foreign affairs under former president Ngo Dinh Diem, said South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was "killing innocent people whose only crime is to ask for free elections..."

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ice and blizzard will be joined in June. Miss Sharon Ice and Euseby Blizzard, fellow junior high school teachers who began dating as a joke, will be married June 11. Other teachers at the school include Mrs. Jack Heater and Robert Freese.

LONDON — Rev. Howard Jones, 45, a member of the Billy Graham crusade team, slept on a makeshift bed early because he is a Negro. Proprietors of an apartment booked for his London stay objected to his color and told him to move after one night's stay.

TAIPEI, Formosa — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, 79, was sworn for his fourth six-year term as president of Nationalist China. Calling himself "an undisciplined old soldier," the leader of free China for more than 40 years pledged to return to the mainland and said even Peking's atomic bombs would not stop him.

LONDON — The Duke and Duchess of Kent left by plane for Georgetown, where they will represent the Queen at British Guiana's independence celebrations next week.

VANCOUVER — Hockey great Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, 61, who quit the game in 1923, was named Vancouver's Good Citizen of the Year by the Native Sons of B.C. The award goes to Taylor for being "an inspiration to youth."

LIVERPOOL, England — Admiral Lord Mountbatten was taken ill in Liverpool just before the start of a full week of engagements with service associations in northwest England. He was reported in bed with a temperature of 102.

MONTREAL — Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale party leader, says he is ready and willing to take part in a CBC television debate with Premier Lesage as part of his campaign for the June 5 provincial election.

OTTAWA — Immigration Minister Marchand says two Yugoslav ship jumpers will not be deported while he reviews their cases and awaits a court judgment in a similar case. The two sailors have been deported to Yugoslavia from Toronto, where they jumped the ship last Dec. 14.

Caution Urged In Woods

The B.C. Forest Service Friday urged British Columbians who will be in the woods this holiday weekend to be careful of fires, even though the weather is expected to be cool and cloudy. The fire hazard is only "low to moderate" in most parts of the province, although it is "moderate to high" in the Ashcroft, Lillooet and Alsea Creek areas of the Kamloops forest district.

Only 35 fires were burning at the end of the week, compared with 106 last week. Forty-two new fires were reported during the week and 113 were extinguished by firefighting personnel.

WHITE ROCK (CP) — School children playing in bush area south of Surrey discovered the body of an elderly woman. An autopsy will be performed on the unidentified woman.

Students Jailed For Protesting

CHICAGO (AP)—Twenty-five Roosevelt University students have been jailed for refusing to end a sit-in aimed against the school's policy of supplying class standings to draft boards. Eight students, including one girl, had to be carried from the eighth floor of the school. They were charged with resisting arrest; the other 17—with criminal trespass.

'Wipe Out Cruelty'

Recognition of Red China, cruelty to animals and the admission of women as elected synod members were among topics covered by Archbishop Harold Sexton in his charge to the synod's meeting Tuesday and Wednesday in Christ Church Cathedral.

He said the people of the world were filled with a feeling of insecurity, brought on by world tensions, and they are looking for some form of central authority to ease the tensions.

The only such organization is the United Nations, the Archbishop said to the 48 clergymen and 128 laymen at the meeting.

U.S. AWARENESS

He said the U.N. deserves the support "of all men of good-will."

He said recognition of Red China is inevitable and he hoped Americans were aware of this.

He said that even under the Red Chinese system, there is an elected government.

SEX ISSUES

Society today is concerned "abnormally" with sex problems, he said.

The Archbishop urged synod delegates to support the SPCA and to try to work for the abolition of practices like skinning young seals alive.

The Synod has approved, in principle, the admission of women as elected synod members.

OVERDUE

The Archbishop said the admission of women was "a long overdue reform in church organization."

Women are already admitted to membership in 16 of the 28 dioceses in Canada.

Roman Catholic Victoria Bishop Remi de Roo addressed the synod on the union of the churches and the recent Vatican Council.

HISTORIC

"This was a truly historic occasion, the highlight of the synod," said Archdeacon A. E. Hendy.

"To my knowledge this has happened only once before in Canada, in London, Ontario."

Dr. F. E. Claxton, of the British Medical Committee, said the church should put greater emphasis on healing.

FAITH

"We believe it is possible that if faith is present, and prayers are said, healing can come, at least spiritually and mentally, if not physically," Archdeacon Hendy said.

"These are often as important, if not more important, than physical healing."

He said that in the church's revised prayer book there are healing services, but generally, this aspect of the church's work has been neglected.

STIPENDS

He emphasized that this type of healing is not of the emotional, theatrical Oral Roberts variety.

The synod approved an increase in clergymen's basic stipend from $3,300 a year to $3,600. The raise becomes effective Jan. 1, 1967.

25,000 Crowd In

Fair Busiest Ever

Victoria Exhibition had its biggest day Friday, when more than 25,000 persons crammed through the gates.

"I've never seen anything like it," said fair director Don Mathison.

"I've been working on this Jaycee fair for about seven years now, and I have never seen so many people."

GOOD WEATHER

"If the weather holds through tomorrow, we should smash all attendance records. There's not much doubt about it now."

However, Mr. Mathison said the Jaycees wouldn't mind a little overnight rain to dampen sawdust.

"We had a complaint from the city engineer's department. The sawdust was blowing all over the road, and they had to clean it up. They are sending us the bill."

Spectacular Planned By Berg

Victoria Exhibition headliner Rodi Berg is planning to put together a major aerial circus, involving four helicopters and about 15 performers.

Mr. Berg said Friday he has had the idea for the aerial spectacular for some time, but needed a financial backer.

He's found one in Ralph Bieker, whose rides and midway booths are babysitting thousands of Victoria children each day of the fair.

Strange thing is, Mr. Bieker approached Mr. Berg about the possibility of the circus.

To run about one hour and 30 minutes, the circus will involve four helicopter trapezes, two high-wire motorcycles, sway poles and wire-walking acts.

Circus debut will be in December, at a Chicago convention of fair officials from all over the U.S.

Mr. Mathison described Friday as "a day of constant trouble." First hit was the dunk tank, when its plastic lining burst. Then the power went off.

The centennial beard contest also was judged.

Best mustache was worn by Daniel Arnason, 1605 Pembroke; best classic style by Gerry Brown, 4136 Birtle; best beard by Ed Jackson, 1003 Lodge; and best full beard by Howard Thornton, 944 Maddison.

Recall Sparks Red Suicide

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Boris Soukhomlinov, third in command of the Soviet embassy here, apparently committed suicide by hanging himself with a belt—a day after getting orders to return to Moscow for transfer to a new post, diplomatic sources said Friday.

1967 Plans Altered

By PATRICK O'NEILL

The Dominion Drama Festival ended its annual Governors' Court Friday with one less province, with a sharp reverse in plans for the 1967 final festival, and without a $20,000-plus annual sponsor.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters decided not to renew sponsorship, which has lasted six years.

The private radio industry's contribution last year included

$18,600 for DDF operation and play festival in St. John's in 1967 would be non-competitive. It was to be a centennial showcase festival.

Lions Majorettes Blaze of Color

A dazzling display of Chinese-red, shimmering in the reflected blaze of countless sequins, is expected to prove an eye-catcher in Monday's parade.

The Victoria Chinatown Lions majorettes will parade their new brilliantly colored uniforms in public for the first time.

"It's the brightest red you ever saw," declared Bessie Tang Friday. "It smacks a person right in the eye."

The majorettes' former uniforms were lilac and gold.

The mothers of the 20 girls the past weeks have been holding sewing bees to get the uniforms ready in time for the parade, Mrs. Tang said.

"I don't know how many miles of sequins we went through, but there were plenty."

The youngsters raised the money for the uniforms by selling cookbooks giving the secrets of creating Chinese dishes.

The new costumes, Mrs. Tang said, have a mandarin neckline and wide cape collars with a white fringe.

In the parade they will be with the club's drum and bell corps, the only one of its kind in Canada.

The units will be marching in the Belmont Park May Day parade at 1:30 p.m. today, but the majorettes will be dressed in their lilac-and-gold uniforms, Mrs. Tang said.

Chamber Studying It

Pay from Profit Freeway Plan

Victoria businessmen will study the possibility of beating a path to their own door.

Directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce assigned the group's transportation and harbor committee Friday to study the feasibility of a $14,000,000 plan for a freeway looping through the downtown area.

Financing proposal is to have the downtown merchants pay one per cent of their profits over the next 25 years to cover the interest on the capital cost, put up by the province.

Directors passed the resolution for the study after a warning from Capital Region

Planning Board director Anthony Roberts.

He said if Victoria businessmen didn't put more time and energy into development of the downtown core, it would "wither on the vine" — and so would they.

He was supported by Ald. Hugh Stephen, who said, "This certainly is the most important business that the Chamber of Commerce has in front of it now — to get business into the downtown core of Victoria."

TOP PRIORITY

"The implementation of the north-south channel on this peninsula should take No. 1 priority in the mind of every businessman," he added.

Mr. Roberts talked briefly on the plan which might evolve from the recently completed traffic study, done by professional firms under the direction of the planning board.

The study envisages a north-south freeway with major spurs to take industrial traffic away from the centre of the city. It would direct shopping traffic into the downtown area, where motorists would be able to leave their cars and shop in pedestrian-only sections.

SHIFT INDICATED

"A close analysis of the situation indicates that everything seems to be shifting northward, and you people are going to have to work hard to keep the focus of attention on the business district," Mr. Roberts said.

"Somewhere we have got to get traffic down to the central core of the peninsula — for the good of all of us," he added.

Members went on record as favoring the principle that retail merchants be permitted to remain open not more than six days and two evenings a week, with the exception of Christmas.

"This is important to us," said J. Courtney Haddock. "If we don't follow this principle, all we get is the dregs of the labor market."

Paul Johnson Re-Elected

Paul Johnson of Victoria was re-elected in Vancouver Thursday to his seventh consecutive two-year term as steward of the Western Canadian wing of the International Alliance of Theatrical Studio Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators, Local 639, Hollywood.

The union covers Canada from Winnipeg west, and has 22 members. Mr. Johnson is a cameraman for the CBC, National Film Board, NBC and CBS, and was the unit's first Canadian member.

Sun a Shade Shy For Big Weekend

Band concerts, races, and the big annual parade are planned for this year's Victoria Day celebrations.

Weather prospects for the weekend appeared a bit uncertain last night. Forecasters said today would be cloudy and cooler, and the prospects for Sunday the same, but with some sunny periods.

Fifteen Washington bands, and a girls' drill team from Seattle will augment the parade Monday and perform concerts Saturday through Monday.

In Victoria for the first time this weekend is the combined band of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, and 15th Field Regiment, RCA.

They will play in Monday's parade, as well as playing a concert at Centennial Square at 3 p.m. Sunday, and at the May Queen crowning at the legislature at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Here's what's going to happen this weekend:

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are the proud parents of two beautiful children—a little boy three years old and a 10-month-old baby girl. We adopted these youngsters through the Tennessee department of welfare.

Not a week goes by that someone doesn't say, "It certainly is wonderful of you to take those poor little children into your home. God will bless you some day for your kindness."

The remarks are invariably made in the presence of the children who are too young to understand, but one day soon they will.

How can we make people realize that these children have made our house a home and that God has already blessed us a hundredfold? Please provide us with an answer that will assure our children that we love them and we did not take them into our home because we felt sorry for them. Thank you. — MRS. FURIOUS.

Dear Mrs. F. Children are given the warm feeling that they are wanted and loved by the way they are treated and not by listening to their parents talk to friends.

I do feel that you should respond to your ignorant acquaintances, however, not to reassure your children, but to educate the clods. Tell them—as you told me in your letter—that God has already blessed you, and that the children have enriched your lives beyond your ability to describe it.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter is to let you know I am with you ALL the way on this tipping nonsense.

Bride Wears Heirloom Brooch

Kathleen Elizabeth James became the bride of Mr. Gary Holmes Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Thomas, 597 St. John's Anglican Church. Canon Grahame Baker officiated at the marriage for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length peau de sole gown in slim line style. Trimmed with hand-clipped Chantilly lace, the exquisite gown featured a waltz train and hilly-point sleeves. For "something old" the bride wore a pearl and amethyst brooch which belonged to her grandmother. A cluster of peau de sole flowers held her three-tiered veil and gardenias, stephanotis and white roses were in her cascade bouquet.

Miss Judith James, as maid of honor for her sister, and Mrs. Patrick Neiligan, bridesmaid, wore short style gowns of light pink organza over taffeta with lace bodices. They wore matching floral headpieces and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Miss Peggy O'Connor, flower girl, wore a pink brocade dress and carried a basket of pink roses and ivy. She wore a bandeau of matching flowers in her hair.

For a honeymoon trip to Washington and Oregon, the new Mrs. Ramin wore a black and white checked light wool suit which was made by her mother. Black and red accessories and a red carnation corsage accented her going-away costume.

The newlyweds are now making their home in the city.

It will be a feast of fashions at the McPherson Playhouse next Thursday—the 26th, but there will be other attractions as well. There will be a table of dolls, all dressed in hand-made clothes. The dolls are for both the younger generation and for those who make a hobby of collecting. Then there are the door prizes. One of the main ones is pictured above, right, modelled by Mickey Jaycock. The Italian knit slims, manufactured for Sebastian's, are of bright orange and the print Dacron blouse is in toning shades. Also from Sebastian's, who are providing the clothes for the show, is the white Italian knit coat modelled by Lilah Millen. The pretty hats are by Rosalie. Lilah is wearing a pill box of pale pink roses and tulle. Some lucky person will win one of these hats. Other door prizes will be dinners for two, a crystal vase, a ceramic bowl and a tray. The show is being opened by Mrs. Peakes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, at 2:30 p.m. Reg. Stone will play the organ background music and commentator and co-ordinator is Helen Belnes. The entire proceeds will go to the Conquer Cancer Campaign.—(William John)

Sociology Student Off to Conference

By DOROTHY WROTONSKI

Maisie Thomas, a second year student of sociology at Notre Dame University in Nelson, B.C., is off to Ottawa at the end of this month. She will be one of a hundred such students from all across the country attending the Student United Nations Association of Canada five day conference.

Students at the conference will study international affairs and promotion of understanding of world affairs.

How to create interest among students in United Nations projects will also be discussed and the role of UN in world affairs will also be examined and assessed.

Another student of sociology at Notre Dame, Denis Hartman of Victoria, will also attend the conference in leadership.

Maisie, a high average student, was chosen as delegate by Club International and Student Union of Notre Dame. She also worked during the year as secretary of Canadian University Students and in the same capacity during Brotherhood Week.

While in Ottawa, the students will be taken on embassy visits and there will also be a tour of the Parliament Buildings. And Maisie hopes there won't be any bombs.

Maisie attended St. Ann's Academy here before going up to Prince George College where she started her studies in sociology. She has two more years at Notre Dame and then plans to attend St. Patrick's College in Ottawa for her final year.

First, Maisie had wanted to be a teacher but as she was growing up, social work became more important. She plans to work among her own people, the Indians of British Columbia. And she feels that the coast Indian has made more progress than those in the interior. So it is the interior of the province that she will go out at Brentwood. Her sister, when her course is completed, Lack of education she thinks is one of the major problems for the Indian and she is quite determined to be one of those who will work to raise the social and economic level for the Indians. While here, Maisie stays with her grandfather, Mr. Chris Paul out at Brentwood. Her sister, Maxine, has been a Sidney princess during the past year.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Capt. and Mrs. Harry W. Burton, 142 Eberts Street, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at an "at home" on Saturday, May 28.

Heather and Roses Presented

A corsage of pale pink roses and white heather was presented to Miss Marie Norie at a recent miscellaneous shower held in her honor at the home of Mrs. G. Spark. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Walter Norie, received a corsage of pink gladioli. Gifts were presented in a clothes basket decorated by Sandra and Susan Jennings. Miss Norie cut a shower cake. She was assisted by Mrs. Ian Norie and Miss Edith Edgson. Guests were Mrs. H. Neaves, Mrs. H. Bull, Mrs. R. Vaneas, Mrs. F. Tomlinson, Mrs. H. Monaghan, Mrs. B. Thornber, Mrs. G. Dunaway, Miss Barbara Bull and Miss Gail Neaves.

Forthcoming Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gilstein, 1734 Hollywood Crescent, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Eleanor Andrea, to Mr. Edward Russell Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, 1382 Courtland Avenue. The wedding will take place on Thursday, June 30, at 7 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church with the Rev. A. E. King officiating.

Gifts in Wedding Cake

Mrs. Ian Rendle entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower in her Lansdowne home for Mrs. Paul Herman, the former Gwendolyn Eckman. Gifts were presented in a three-tiered wedding cake. Carnation corsages were presented to the bride and her mother, Mrs. W. Eckman. Other guests were Mrs. A. B. Young, Mrs. J. Danielson, Mrs. C. Salmund, Mrs. F. Wills, Mrs. K. Richards, Mrs. D. Dieker, Mrs. C. Padgett, Mrs. J. Slater, Mrs. C. Smalley, and the Misses Christine Hunt, Naomi Stevens, Joan Frewing, Nancy Burke, Charlotte Hick and Pat Renfrew.

Beverlee Clark Weds D.J. McLeod

Another Victorian to obtain her diploma in nursing at a mainland graduation this year was Miss Linda Mahaffy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mahaffy, 117 Dunsterville Road. She graduated from the school of psychiatric nursing at Riverview Hospital, Essendale, in April.—(Atlas Studio)

White gladioli decorated Esquimalt Church recently for the wedding of Beverlee Bernice Clark and Daniel Jack McLeod. Rev. Hartwell B. Illsey officiated at the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas L. Clark, 4042 Fred Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Les McLeod of Edson, Alberta.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor length white wedding gown styled with empire waistline and topped with a sleeveless, lace-trimmed coat of white crystal. Her shoulder-length, pearl veil was attached to a satin pill box trimmed with sequin applique. She carried a single white orchid.

Miss Diane McMillan of Vancouver and Miss Irma Kowalski of Kamloops were the bridesmaids. They wore floor length gowns of yellow with white lace trim at the empire waistline. Their sequin-trimmed yellow pill box hats had matching veils attached and they carried nosegays of white gladioli and white roses centred with a single yellow rose.

Mr. James Dyer was best man for his brother and Mr. John Clark, Mr. Bob McLeod and Mr. David Clark showed guests to pews marked with white satin ribbons.

The reception which followed the ceremony was the first to be held at the newly opened Red Lion Motor Inn. The more than 100 guests were served dinner at tables set cabaret style.

Could Draw An Egg

CHICAGO (AP)—A widowed grandmother who took up painting in her 50s "because I had time on my hands" is holding her first one-man show.

But Willa Henry, a stylish vivacious, red-haired woman, is no Grandma Moses. There are no primitive country scenes among the 15 or 20 canvases displayed in the lobby of a Loop building.

"I never have a subject matter in mind," she said, explaining her method. "I flick paint on the canvas and just keep concentrating and finally something comes."

What usually comes is a misty expressionistic scene, shimmering with light and color.

A series of three paintings has an oriental look, so she named it Jade East 1, 2 and 3. Another reminded her son-in-law of a golf course he played on in Ireland, so she named it Killarney. And another was painted after Mrs. Henry saw a James Bond movie. Its title — Thunderball.

Mrs. Henry says she has sold a number of paintings, for prices up to $300.

Mrs. Henry began painting about five years ago, after her husband's death. "I knew nothing about art," she said, "but when I looked at paintings I often thought to myself, 'Wouldn't it be just marvellous to be able to produce something like that?'"

Finally, she asked an artist friend if, at her age, she could "start from scratch" and learn to paint.

"He asked me if I could draw an egg," she recalled. "I said, 'I don't know, but I can try.' And I did, and I could."

Unquestionably the finest location in Victoria for apartment dwelling
Just a few short minutes walk from the heart of the business area.
Due to the response of people discriminating taste our choice of 3 and 2 bedroom suites is rapidly diminishing. We are sorry to say that our Studio Suites have met such approval that at the present time we have none available for occupancy.
If you are contemplating a change to the most modern of living are Goodacre Towers, compare your offer with ours. You will find the rents very easy to provide you with accommodation you are pleased to call "Home".

A very special feature of the Rembrandt Apartments is this attractively hospitable Rooftop Lounge. With far-reaching views, this comfortable lounge is furnished for quiet reading or social get-togethers. The walls are lined with lovely reproductions from Rembrandt Originals, and the soft blue ceiling has received very special plastering treatment. Surrounding the Rooftop Lounge, on the outside, is a floored sundeck.

In Bloody, Bitter Da Nang: 'Why Does U.S. Allow This?'

Pagoda 'Eye' in Hurricane of Anarchy

By LEON DANIEL

DA NANG, Viet Nam (UPI) — The dead, the dying and the determined held the pagoda fortress.

Machineguns, tank cannon, grenades and automatic rifles spat fire and death only 400 yards from the tiled walls of the Tinh Hoi pagoda.

In the temple I found fear but no panic.

They laid the wounded under a large shade tree beside the walls and teen-age Buddhists girls fanned them and tried to smile.

In a little building next to the temple they laid out five bodies, victims of the war beyond the wall. In the same building sat

Buddhist monks fasting in a gesture they hoped would drive away the government troops besieging them.

Some girls fluttered by in their willowy ao dais, the native dress, and bent over two small boys wounded by shrapnel. An old woman leaned her head against a wall and wept. A monk sounded the temple gongs.

A young Buddhist, his hands trembling, handed me a mimeographed letter.

"Be sure Gen. Walt gets this," he said.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt commands the U.S. marine force on the outskirts of town. The Buddhists wanted the leathernecks to save them.

A few minutes before I had been crouching on the other side, behind the Vietnamese government marines and their tanks. A rebel ambulance drove up and the marines gave him permission to cross to the rebel lines. Soldiers respect battlefield life-savers. I jumped aboard.

I kept my head low for whatever good it did. The back of the driver's hands dripped with sweat. I watched the drops fall as the ambulance bumped over the battlefield.

I leaped off the ambulance two blocks from the pagoda. I found CBS correspondent Bill Stout and cameraman Jerry Adams. To the drumbeat of bullets and whizzing shells, we moved toward the eye of the hurricane, that calm pagoda.

The firing increased. We ducked behind some trees. A tree is not good psychological protection against bullets. I paused a moment and then ran on ahead.

There I found Roger Peterson, an ABC correspondent and several of his colleagues head-

Talks Fail

Fishing Pact Junked

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States announced Friday they have scrapped a 1957 agreement and will make their own rules on salmon fishing on the west coast.

A joint communique issued after three days of negotiations in Seattle and a statement in Ottawa by Fisheries Minister Robichaud made it clear the two countries had disagreed over salmon fishing restrictions.

In the communique, both countries stated they will no longer be bound by the 1957 agreement which prohibits fishing beyond the surf line along all the coastline except Alaska where the boundary was from headland to headland.

NO ALTERNATIVE

Mr. Robichaud told the Commons Friday that after failure of talks in Seattle there is no alternative but for Canada to reserve the right to extend fisheries seaward, where appropriate, to correct inequities.

The dispute centred around complaints from Canada that U.S. fishermen are intercepting salmon bound for British Columbia rivers in the southeastern Alaska area. The U.S. replied it has historic fishing rights in that area.

Each side proposed revised net fishing lines but neither would accept the other's plan.

NAME COMMITTEE

A committee was named to study a co-operative research plan aimed at a solution.

Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) said in Ottawa the U.S. attitude is one of arrogance, and he accused the U.S. of using a two-headed policy.

The U.S. had "spoken out belligerently" when Japanese fishermen intercepted fish from Alaskan waters, he said.

EXPECTED OFFER

A spokesman in Washington said the U.S. had expected Canada would make an offer in return for reduction of the Americans' salmon netting in southeastern Alaska.

"We thought some compromise could have been offered and agreed to, but apparently it was not," he said.

Bomber's Booby Trap Feared in Mail Truck

WINNIPEG (CP) — RCMP and postal authorities Friday sought a parcel mailed by the man who died in a bomb blast in a Parliament Buildings washroom.

In a detailed back-checking job, they hoped to establish whether the parcel—which police say may be booby-trapped—is on a mail truck between the West Coast and Winnipeg.

Each side proposed revised net fishing lines but neither would accept the other's plan.

First indications were it might be on the mail car of the CPR's passenger train, the Ca-but evidently was returned by the local post office because Mrs. Chartier could not be located under that name.

Harrison Murray, district director of the post office here, said trucks as well as trains carry mail from British Columbia where the parcel originally was addressed.

Mr. Murray said if the parcel's routing could be narrowed, the truck carrying it would be intercepted if necessary.

RCMP said Paul Joseph Chartier mailed the parcel to his estranged wife in B.C. before his death. Chartier, who evidence indicates planned to explode a dynamite bomb in the House of Commons chamber Wednesday, was killed when it went off prematurely in a nearby washroom.

Alberni IWA Backs Strike

PORT ALBERNI — Members of Local 145 International Woodworkers of America have given overwhelming support for strike action by the union.

In an unofficial vote conducted by business agent John Squire, 94.3 per cent voted to strike to back wage demands. A total of 3,446 ballots were cast, 196 voted against and there were 11 spoiled ballots. Results were made public Friday.

RETURNED

Mrs. Chartier could not be located by the post office, however, and the parcel was returned to Chartier's address in Toronto.

In Salmo, B.C., Mrs. Chartier confirmed she was told by the RCMP Thursday of a possibility of a booby-trapped parcel had been mailed to her by her husband.

Salmo RCMP said the parcel, about 14 inches square, arrived there a week or 10 days ago.

All-Stars In Dance

Canada Wants U.S. Panhandle

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadians would like to absorb the Alaska Panhandle with suitable recompense he felt Canada would offer but suggested the issue is for a government-to-government approach.

The conference report said Canada regards the panhandle as an impediment to developing northern B.C. and the Yukon and that "the problem was considered so grave that while Canada was not really interested in paying the Alaska Highway, it would seriously consider doing so for access rights."

The U.S. response to that was mention of a bill pending in the Senate to pay half the cost of paving the Alaska Highway linking the northern state via Alberta, B.C. and the Yukon.

Smith, British Columbia Liberal and a co-leader of the 24-man Canadian delegation, said Canadians want the Alaskan boundary pushed back to the 60th parallel. This would wipe

Creates New Problems, Says Doctor

Homosexual Bill 'Selfish'

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Most of Britain's members of Parliament who favor legalizing homosexuality, are inclined that way themselves, a prominent member of the British Medical Association said Friday.

Dr. Ernest Claxton, former assistant secretary to the BMA, was commenting on a bill, currently before Parliament, which would permit homosexuality between consenting persons over 21.

Dr. Claxton said he didn't like the existing laws "but changing them would create new problems."

He said legalizing homosexuality would only increase its incidence and not solve any problems connected with it.

Explaining his reference to certain members being homosexuals, the doctor said "it is common knowledge there are homosexuals in high places, and in most countries. They have different motives, sometimes selfish, and that is what I mean about the bill before Parliament."

Legalizing homosexuality will not solve the problem of blackmail, which is common in cases of homosexuality, added Dr. Claxton, secretary for the Wolfenden 1957 report on homosexuality and prostitution.

"With legalization, youths will be encouraged to experiment, then will believe they are homosexuals and develop their lives around it."

He said the solution rests in "establishing a greater human relationships between ourselves and the creator."

Breakdowns in morality, he explained, can also be created by parents who replace family standards and moral courage with material things, to gain the love of their children.

Dr. Claxton, a resident of Kent, is on a speaking tour of Canada. He was invited here by the Anglican archbishop of British Columbia.

Buddhist Ultimatum to Ky:

QUIT OR FACE BLOODBATH

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese war planes bombed rebel positions at Da Nang today for the first time and in Saigon thousands of Buddhist monks and nuns staged a sitdown hunger strike against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

At Da Nang, rebel troops lobbed mortar shells into the big U.S. air base, jammed with aircraft, but no damage or casualties were reported.

There were fears the day-long hunger strike would set off new violence in the capital, where anti-government rioting erupted Friday night.

The rise in the tempo of the political and military struggle threatened to further stall the war against the Viet Cong.

Fresh gunfire cracked in Da Nang, a hotbed of Buddhist opposition, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

From Hue, a Buddhist centre 50 miles beyond Da Nang, the nation's leading monk, Thich Tri Quang, telephoned this ultimatum to the Buddhist Institute here for relay to Ky: Resign or more blood will flow.

More Blood Will Flow

As the gulf between Ky and the Buddhists widened, about 400 to 500 monks and nuns, some carrying first-aid kits, marched to Saigon's main Buddhist institute, to begin their strike. They were joined by hundreds of others.

Thich Thien Minh, one of the powerful institute leaders, urged the Buddhists to "pray for the people of central Viet Nam" where, he charged, hundreds have been killed or wounded in the civil strife.

At daybreak in Da Nang, four Skyraiders from Ky's air force made a low pass at rebel troops on the east side of the Da Nang River and dropped four or five bombs.

They also strafed rebel soldiers. No bombs were dropped into the city itself.

Heavy firing broke out as the planes attacked.

It was the first time air power has been brought into the battle of Da Nang, although there were reports that Vietnamese Air Force planes Friday strafed a column of defecting troops outside the northern city.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge returned from Washington to help work out a solution. The Buddhists are demanding an end to military rule.

Shouting against both the United States and the military government, about 1,000 youths rallied for the Buddhist Institute for a rampage in Saigon streets reminiscent of earlier disorders halted by a mid-April truce.

The mob smashed windows, stoned police and hurled flaming-gasoline bombs. One banner read: "No Vietnamese lives for American dollars."

Police checked the rioters with tear-gas.

Among other developments:

● Reports from the northern provinces making up South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area spoke of two convoys of government troops deserting to join the rebels, presumably at Da Nang. One convoy of defecting was reported strayed by Ky's planes.

● American officials hoped economic pressure on northern dissidents would help to achieve a settlement. They spoke of plans to cut supplies in order to bring the rebels to their knees.

● Sporadic fighting went on throughout the day in Da Nang. Machine-gun bullets chewed at the government's Da Nang garrison headquarters; government tanks and rebel gunners staged a 10-minute duel by night across the Da Nang River.

● Monsoon rains limited U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam for the sixth straight day. U.S. Air Cavalrymen fought on against an enemy force in the central highlands of South Viet Nam near An Khe.

Hunger Strikers Smashed

SAIGON (UPI)—Riot police, hurling tear gas grenades and firing rifles into the air, smashed through about 5,000 Buddhist hunger strikers in front of the Vinh Hoa Dao pagoda today.

The riot police charged through Buddhist barricades set up about 300 yards on either side of the pagoda.

PULLOUT? 'U.S. HAS NO PLAN'

LOS ANGELES (LAT)—The United States has no contingency plan for the withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam should some future Saigon government ask them to leave, Army Secretary Stanley Resor said here Friday.

His unqualified "No, we don't" response came during a news conference prior to his armed forces week luncheon address to the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A number of army officers present were visibly surprised. In the armed forces it is taken for granted that there are contingency plans for all possible situations.

Russia NATO Partner?

LONDON (AP) — A new idea for modernizing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was reported under official study today. It would allow the Atlantic alliance to work ultimately with the Soviet Union if China emerges as the world's third superpower.

"In reorganizing NATO we should concentrate less on keeping it as a purely defensive organization to meet military threats," said an authoritative British source.

"We should see it more as an organization of Western nations that could negotiate from strength with the aim of arriving at some common ground with Russia about attitudes of the world of the 1980s and 1990s when we might have to contend with a third superpower."

Evacuation Weighed

State department officials in Washington said the U.S. is considering the removal of about 400 American civilians from the strife-torn Hue-Da Nang area.

The Saigon government seemed to be aiming at wearing out rather than overrunning rebel troops and armed civilians in Da Nang.

Capt. Nguyen Thu Luong, commander of a company of paratroopers, said they were under orders to shoot high unless they definitely spotted a rebel firing at them.

Buddhist authorities said in a letter to Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Viet Nam, that at least 1,000 persons have been killed or wounded in the fighting, which developed after the government sent in 2,500 troops last Sunday. The figure far exceeded other unofficial estimates of up to 300 killed and 150 wounded.

The Buddhists asked Walt, whose headquarters are at Da Nang, to force out the government troops and threatened that if he did not intervene:

"We have decided to die for our religion and our nation and will destroy immediately the Da Nang airfield."

Port Alberni Research

Climate Could Be Factor

Pollution Causes Need Extensive Study

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

A more extensive research program will have to be carried out before the effects of pulp mill air pollution at Port Alberni can be determined, said project chief Dr. Donald Anderson.

Biggest question still to be answered, he says, is whether the high incidence of respiratory diseases in the Alberni Valley is caused by pulp mill gases or by coastal wet weather.

Dr. Anderson, an epidemiologist and associate professor in the department of preventive medicine at the University of British Columbia, is in charge of the Ottawa-funded, three-year air pollution study which is being jointly carried out by UBC and two branches of the provincial health department.

Little has been said of the study, which began last August. The health department's progress reports are tucked away in "confidential" reports which are not available to the press, and Dr. Anderson explains simply that they don't want the public to jump to conclusions about a research program which has hardly begun.

But he pulled back the veil of secrecy this week far enough to disclose some of the progress which is being made.

The pollution study is divided into two programs — a careful analysis of the particles and gases in the air at Port Alberni and a pilot study of respiratory illnesses suffered by Grade 1 pupils there.

For comparative purposes, similar studies are being carried out at Chilliwack, a community in the Fraser Valley east of Vancouver, which was chosen as a control point because its climate is about the same as Port Alberni's.

On the physical side of the dual city studies, data is being gathered about wind velocity and direction, the distribution and volume of suspended particles found in the air, and the distribution and amount of such gases as sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide and mercaptans which are normally found near pulp and paper operations.

On the health aspect of the problem, a survey was made of the school absenteeism of Grade 1 pupils, in which a home visit or telephone check was made every time a student stayed home from school.

Dr. Anderson, said analysis of the chemicals from the air is running two months behind time, and it is too early to give any interim report on this phase.

Results of the school pilot study, he said, were "interesting but they don't prove anything."

The department of preventive medicine at UBC now plans to ask Ottawa this fall for more money in the hope of starting a new research program in April, 1967, said Dr. Anderson.

The new study would be focused on pre-school children, who are "exceedingly susceptible to respiratory disease," and on housewives, who spend most of their days in a "small circumscribed area of a community where we can measure the pollution" that they've been exposed to.

Dr. Anderson said his group is probing new horizons because "until we began our studies, nobody else had identified any health hazard due to the pulp mill industry."

"Now in our series of studies, we will really be the first... to determine whether or not there are any changes in people's resistance due to air pollution from known process."

Dr. Anderson said there is a "high possibility" that coastal rainfall, rather than the pulp mill, poses the real threat to health.

"There is published evidence in medical literature to indicate that colds and chronic bronchitis can be related to moisture, humidity, rainfall and temperature change."

This possibility complicates research, and at this stage of the program, which will not be completed until 1967, all Dr. Anderson could say was: "The conclusion that I can draw is that it's a very difficult thing to study."

He added that until such time as any link was established between health hazard and pulp mill operations it might be that communities "are going to have to be forced to control these industries simply on the basis of their nuisance factors, just as we control smoke on the basis of nuisance."

Royal Sendoff for Queen

Bennett's Ballet Has All-Star Cast

By DON HUNTLEY

CAMPBELL RIVER — Premier Bennett who never misses an opportunity when there is a large crowd on hand didn't hesitate when Alert Bay Indian Chief Baker invited him to join in a ceremonial dance to honor the maiden voyage of the Queen of Prince Rupert over the Route of the Haida.

Chief Baker, in ceremonial robes of brilliant color and decorated with sequins and pearl buttons, led the way as the premier with cabinet ministers, William, Kierman, Campbell and Peterson along with their wives joined in.

To the delight of the crowd Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and Governor William Egan of Alaska followed with their wives.

The premier and his party had an obvious show-stopper as they followed Chief Baker through the Prairie chicken dance. The crowd loved every minute of it and the premier thoroughly enjoyed himself.

This type of impromptu ballet

Bay presented the model to the premier along with a couple of jokes which brought fresh waves of laughter from the crowd.

In the joke department the premier took a back seat to no one.

When Ray Rosebank presented him with a framed painting of the totem the premier quipped: "They get the big teeth in their cartoons of me from these totem poles."

Robert Clifton shot back: "It took the white man 1,000 years to get civilized but it only took the Indians 50."

In a last-minute effort to upstage the all-star cast "Flying Phil" Gagliardi arrived in a float plane and was brought ashore in a rowboat.

The premier got last laugh when he asked, "where's your paddle?"

Everybody there is convinced the Queen was given a right royal send-off.

P. A. Gagliardi

proved a hard act to follow but Sayward Women's Institute came through with a series of musical songs, using popular tunes as backing and almost stole the show.

Biggest laughs come, naturally, from Premier Bennett and Highway Minister Gagliardi, no mean showman himself.

During the festivities a special totem was presented by Sayward's senior citizen W. W. Saeki. Dedication was made by Robert Clifton an official of the Native Brotherhood.

Travellers aboard the Queen of Prince Rupert will be able to see a memento of the ceremony as Premier Bennett instructed ferries manager Monty Aldous to have a carved model of a cedar canoe put in a glass case aboard the ship.

President Speaks at Convention

Lack of Personnel Emphasized

Orientation, Training Vital in Helping Retarded

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — Orientation and training of personnel is needed in helping B.C.'s Retarded, R. H. Davidson, Vancouver, president of the Association of Retarded Children for B.C., said Friday afternoon.

The lack of trained personnel is a tragic situation, he added.

Mr. Davidson was speaking to 200 delegates at the ninth provincial convention of the association.

For a centennial project the association looked around for something appropriate, and "our obvious choice was a scheme, not a thing," he said.

The scheme is to provide training for all who meet with the retarded. This has been accepted by the three universities involved, Mr. Davidson said, "but now we need the acceptance of the giving public and the government."

The three universities aiding the plan are UBC, Victoria and Simon Fraser.

Faculty or department heads will apply to the B.C. Mental Retardation Institute for grants of money for specific programs of training, submitting a brief and an outline of their program at the same time.

Mr. Davidson was high in his praise for the work accomplished by the association's chapters.

Prior to the 50s help was related to government institutions. During the 50s "parents found a stirring hope that there is a role they should and could apply."

In the past decade "you have gained in-community training for school age moderately-retarded children with the help of government funds, and pre-school and post-school training without the help of government."

Mr. Davidson said the B.C. Association for Retarded Children is "over a very rough and binding barrel," when dealing with the government regarding capital expansion.

He pointed out the government will pay one-third the cost, but only sets aside a limited amount of money every year.

If there are more requests than funds the association has to make a list of priorities. "I know you people can't wait in line," Mr. Davidson said.

He ended his year's report by saying what he has done together is amazing, what we can do in the next decade can be even more amazing."

Reporting for the recreation committee Evelyn Bjarnason said "plans which were in progress for a provincial recreation workshop were abandoned in anticipation of the Canadian Centennial Commission's acceptance of the proposal which the Canadian Association presented for physical fitness for the retarded."

Assessment Reduced

NANAIMO — Assessment of North Oyster resident Cliff Williams' property has been reduced by $3,000. His assessment has been reduced from $7,335 to $4,335.

Mr. Williams took his case to the Assessment Appeal Board, April 15, and is now elated at winning his battle with the taxman.

He received official notification of the reduction on Wednesday.

He had bought his case by maintaining there was no legal grounds for taxing timber located on land classified as farm land separately from the land on the basis of its commercial value.

The board agreed this was in line with a decision made in the appeal of Tumbo Island Investments, near Victoria in 1963 and subsequently upheld by the supreme court.

PARKSVILLE — All schools in District 69 have entries in the big track-and-field meeting scheduled to be held here, May 22 under the auspices of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Events will start at 12:30 p.m. and it is hoped that a good crowd of spectators will turn out to cheer the youngsters as they go through the many routines.

Winners of the Parksville meet will go on to the zone meet at Comox in June. P. A. Roberts is sports officer for Mt. Arrowarm Branch 49 Royal Canadian Legion and will be assisted by other legion members and physical education teachers from the schools.

TOPINO — A $91,993 contract for construction of a federal building here has been awarded to Russ Davis Construction Co. of Vancouver.

The two-storey building will house a post office, a health department clinic and an office for the fisheries department. Work is to be completed in five months.

COBBLE HILL — Innistree Holly, owned by J. A. N.

Fish Soak Up Radiation

garet's School herd at Duncan before being purchased by Mr. Balme. Her sire is Grandview Tru Mold 4th and she is classified Good Plus.

GANGES — On Sunday, a centennial plaque will be unveiled at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, Ganges, commemorating the Freedom of City of Victoria awarded to the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and to honor the men of Salt Spring Island who served in this famous Regiment in two wars.

A quarter-guard and Regimental band in full dress uniform, part of the Regiment, will arrive on the Island and will be joined in a special parade at the Cenotaph by a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police, together with original members of No. 13, Platoon "D" company of the Regiment.

NANAIMO — Opening of the Goodwill Workshop for the handicapped has been postponed until June 10.

Bob Fawdry, a director of Goodwill Enterprises, made the announcement here.

He said sidewalk and curbing is holding up opening of the store and workshop on Grace Street, and a hole has to be drilled through solid rock before a utility pole can be moved.

PARKSVILLE — A mention to donate $150 to Parksville Centennial project fund was approved at a meeting of Parksville and District Garden Club. Of this amount $131 had been realized at a tea and sale of home cooking and plants in April. The club president, Mrs. George Tranfield, thanked everyone who had helped to make the event a success. The club will further support the Centennial project by selling Centennial dollars and Frank Telford was appointed chairman of a committee to promote this scheme. Assistants are H. E. Heath and E. F. McKay.

CHEMAMUS — The annual meeting of the Chemamus Ratepayers and Citizens Association was held in the Chemamus Fire hall with Louis Shelling, in the chair.

For the election of officers Harry Ewart, took over the chair and the following were elected to serve in the coming year, Louis Shelling, president; C. S. White, vice-president; Thomas Kay, treasurer; Mrs. Howard Valleau, secretary; directors: C. Douglas, J. Webster, E. Chang, Baden Millard, Mickey Sharp, Mrs. Fred Kilner, Mrs. W. Fyfe, and Mr.

COURTENAY — Chairman of Comox District Group Committee, Boy Scouts of Canada, will be called to discuss development of a "desperate" need for volunteers to serve on the executive of the district council and in other key positions throughout the area, says R. T. Farrington, president of the Island regional group.

The district has had outstanding support and co-operation from service personnel stationed here. Volunteers from the air force have been, and are carrying the heaviest load of leadership and executive work. They have given leadership in the council as well.

But these volunteers are subject to transfer at any time. The "desperate" need can only be overcome by permanent residents offering their time and energies to keeping Scouting going in Comox district.

CHEMAMUS — May Temple Pythian Sisters enjoyed a visit from their district deputy grand chief, Mrs. Vera Barry, of Victoria, with a bus-load of visiting Sisters from Victoria and Duncan Temples.

The distinguished visitor was presented with a camellia corsage, and a warm welcome was also extended to other guests including Miss Vera Mesher, past supreme representative, from Victoria, and Mrs. K. Savage, grand treasurer, from Duncan. The charter was draped in tribute to Mrs. Mildred Seney, a past supreme chief, who died recently.

25,000 Crowd In

Fair Busiest Ever

Victoria Exhibition had its biggest day Friday, when more than 25,000 persons crammed through the gates.

"I've never seen anything like it," said fair director Don Mathison.

"I've been working on this Jaycee fair for about seven years now, and I have never seen so many people."

GOOD WEATHER

"If the weather holds through tomorrow, we should smash all attendance records. There's not much doubt about it now."

However, Mr. Mathison said the Jaycees wouldn't mind a little overnight rain to dampen sawdust.

"We had a complaint from the city engineer's department. The sawdust was blowing all over the road, and they had to clean it up. They are sending us the bill."

Spectacular Planned By Berg

Victoria Exhibition headliner Rudi Berg is planning to put together a major aerial circus, involving four helicopters and about 15 performers.

Mr. Berg said Friday he has had the idea for the aerial spectacular for some time, but needed a financial backer.

He's found one in Ralph Meeker, whose rides and midway booths are babysitting thousands of Victoria children each day of the fair.

Strange thing is, Mr. Meeker approached Mr. Berg about the possibility of the circus.

To run about one hour and 30 minutes, the circus will involve four helicopter trapezes, two high-wire motorcycles, saw poles and wire-walking acts. Circus debut will be in December, at a Chicago convention of fair officials from all over the U.S.

1967 Plans Altered

By PATRICK O'NEILL

The Dominion Drama Festival ended its annual Governors' Court Friday with one less province, with a sharp reverse in plans for the 1967 final festival, and without a $20,000-plus annual sponsor.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters decided not to renew sponsorship, which has lasted six years.

The private radio industry's contribution last year included $18,600 for DDF operation and $2,400 for drama awards. (See also Page 17.)

One DDF official expressed optimism that the festival organization will be able to find alternate sources of revenue, and that tight budgeting will take up the slack.

The DDF had announced last year at the final in Brockville, Ont., that the 1967 all-Canadian play festival in St. John's in 1967 would be non-competitive. It was to be a centennial showcase festival.

This was thrown out Friday, on the insistence of the Newfoundland organizers of the festival next year, who maintained they could not sell the festival unless it was competitive.

The change came under fire from DDF official and well-known drama critic Herb Whitaker from Toronto.

"The majority of Canadians wanted a non-competitive festival, and this is being changed to suit one province, Newfoundland."

"I believe it is important that work to develop theatre as something aside from a playground competition."

"Theatre is not a competitive sport, and we must proclaim this as early and as often as possible."

But most governors appeared to agree with Quebec cultural official Guy Beaulne, when he took issue with Mr. Whitaker.

"I believe it is important that the DDF keep competition," he said.

Competition is definitely "what is wanted" by drama companies, he said, adding that it is an incentive "through which we have achieved some of our goals."

During the meeting, Manitoba asked and received permission to withdraw as an active part of the DDF.

The reasons, not outlined, were summed up as "organizational problems."

There will be six plays in the DDF final next year.

One play will come from west of Ontario. One play will come from the four provinces east of Quebec. Four plays will come from Ontario and Quebec.

"Matinees don't work," said re-elected DDF president John Brook of Simcoe, Ont., explaining the drop in number of plays.

Lions Majorettes Blaze of Color

A dazzling display of Chinese-red, shimmering in the reflected blaze of countless sequins, is expected to prove an eye-catcher in Monday's parade.

The Victoria Chinatown Lions majorettes will parade their new brilliantly colored uniforms in public for the first time.

"It's the brightest red you ever saw," declared Bessie Tang Friday. "It smacks a person right in the eye."

The majorettes' former uniforms were lilac and gold.

The mothers of the 20 girls the past weeks have been holding sewing bees to get the uniforms ready in time for the parade, Mrs. Tang said.

"I don't know how many miles of sequins we went through, but there were plenty."

The youngsters raised the money for the uniforms by selling cookbooks giving the secrets of creating Chinese dishes.

The new costumes, Mrs. Tang said, have a mandarin neckline and wide cape collars with a white fringe.

In the parade they will be with the club's drum and bell corps, the only one of its kind in Canada.

The units will be marching in the Belmont Park May Day parade at 1:30 p.m. today, but the majorettes will be dressed in their lilac-and-gold uniforms, Mrs. Tang said.

Chamber Studying It

Pay from Profit Freeway Plan

Victoria businessmen will study the possibility of beating a path to their own door.

Directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce assigned the group's transportation and harbor committee Friday to study the feasibility of a $14,000,000 plan for a freeway looping through the downtown area.

Financing proposal is to have the downtown merchants pay one per cent of their profits over the next 25 years to cover the interest on the capital cost, put up by the province.

Directors passed the resolution for the study after a warning from Capital Region

Planning Board director Anthony Roberts.

He said if Victoria businessmen didn't put more time and energy into development of the downtown core, it would "wither on the vine" — and so would they.

It was supported by Ald. Hugh Stephen, who said, "This certainly is the most important business that the Chamber of Commerce has in front of it now — to get business into the downtown core of Victoria."

TOP PRIORITY

"The implementation of the north-south channel on this peninsula should take No. 1 priority in the mind of every businessman," he added.

Mr. Roberts talked briefly on the plan which might evolve from the recently completed traffic study, done by professional firms under the direction of the planning board.

The study envisages a north-south freeway with major spurs to take industrial traffic away from the centre of the city. It would direct shopping traffic into the downtown area, where motorists would be able to leave their cars and shop in pedestrian-only sections.

SHIFT INDICATED

"A close analysis of the situation indicates that everything seems to be shifting northward, and you people are going to have to work hard to keep the focus of attention on the business district," Mr. Roberts said.

"Somewhere we have got to get traffic down to the central core of the peninsula — for the good of all of us," he added.

Members went on record as favoring the principle that retail merchants be permitted to remain open not more than six days and two evenings a week, with the exception of Christmas.

"This is important to us," said J. Courtney Haddock. "If we don't follow this principle, all we get is the drags of the labor market."

Paul Johnson Re-Elected

Paul Johnson of Victoria was re-elected in Vancouver Thursday to his seventh consecutive two-year term as steward of the Western Canadian wing of the International Alliance of Theatrical Studio Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators, Local 659, Hollywood.

The union covers Canada from Winnipeg west, and has 22 members. Mr. Johnson is a cameraman for the CBC, National Film Board, NBC and CBS, and was the unit's first Canadian member.

Sun a Shade Shy For Big Weekend

Band concerts, races, and the big annual parade are planned for this year's Victoria Day celebrations.

Weather prospects for the weekend appeared a bit uncertain last night. Forecasters said today would be cloudy and cooler, and the prospects for Sunday the same, but with some sunny periods.

Fifteen Washington bands, and a girls' drill team from Seattle will augment the parade Monday and perform concerts Saturday through Monday.

In Victoria for the first time this weekend is the combined band of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, and 15th Field Regiment, RCA.

They will play in Monday's parade, as well as playing a concert at Centennial Square at 3 p.m. Sunday, and at the May Queen crowning at the legislature at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Here's what's going to happen this weekend:

Bloodbath Eyewitness:

CHILDREN WERE MAIMED

By LEON DANIEL

DA NANG, Viet Nam (UPI) — The dead, the dying and the determined held the pagoda fortress.

Machineguns, tank cannon, grenades and automatic rifles spat fire and death only 400 yards from the tiled walls of the Tinh Hoi pagoda.

"In the temple I found fear but no panic.

They laid the wounded under a large shade tree beside the walls and teen-age Buddhists girls fanned them and tried to smile.

In a little building next to the temple they laid out five bodies, victims of the war beyond the wall. In the same building sat

Buddhist monks fasting in a gesture they hoped would drive away the government troops besieging them.

Some girls fluttered by in their willowy ao dais, the native dress, and bent over two small boys wounded by shrapnel. An old woman leaned her head against a wall and wept. A monk sounded the temple gongs.

A young Buddhist, his hands trembling, handed me a mimeographed letter.

"Be sure Gen. Walt gets this," he said.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt commands the U.S. marine force on the outskirts of town. The Buddhists wanted the leathernecks to save them. A few minutes before I had been crouching on the other side, behind the Vietnamese government marines and their tanks. A rebel ambulance drove up and the marines gave him permission to cross to the rebel lines. Soldiers respect battlefield life-savers. I jumped aboard.

I kept my head low for whatever good it did. The back of the driver's hands dripped with sweat. I watched the drops fall as the ambulance bumped over the battlefield.

I leaped off the ambulance two blocks from the pagoda. I found CBS correspondent Bill Stout and cameraman Jerry Adams. To the drumbeat of bullets and whizzing shells, we moved toward the eye of the hurricane, that calm pagoda.

The firing increased. We ducked behind some trees. A tree is not good psychological protection against bullets. We moved behind a building. I paused a moment and then ran on ahead.

There I found Roger Peterson, an ABC correspondent and several of his colleagues head-

Talks Fail

Fishing Pact Junked

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States announced Friday they have scrapped a 1957 agreement and will make their own rules on salmon fishing on the west coast.

A joint communique issued after three days of negotiations in Seattle and a statement in Ottawa by Fisheries Minister Robichaud made it clear the two countries had disagreed over salmon fishing restrictions.

In the communique, both countries stated they will no longer be bound by the 1957 agreement which prohibits fishing beyond the surf line along all the coastline except Alaska where the boundary was from headland to headland.

NO ALTERNATIVE

Mr. Robichaud told the Commons Friday that after failure of talks in Seattle there is no alternative but for Canada to reserve the right to extend fisheries seaward, where appropriate, to correct inequities.

The dispute centred around complaints from Canada that U.S. fishermen are intercepting salmon bound for British Columbia rivers in the southeastern Alaska area. The U.S. replied it has historic fishing rights in that area.

Each side proposed revised net fishing lines but neither would accept the other's plan.

NAME COMMITTEE

A committee was named to study a co-operative research plan aimed at a solution.

Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) said in Ottawa the U.S. attitude is one of arrogance, and he accused the U.S. of using a two-headed policy.

The U.S. had "spoken out belligerently" when Japanese fishermen intercepted fish from Alaskan waters, he said.

EXPECTED OFFER

A spokesman in Washington said the U.S. had expected Canada would make an offer in return for reduction of the Americans' salmon netting in southeastern Alaska.

"We thought some compromise could have been offered and agreed to, but apparently it was not," he said.

Truck Cleared in Hunt For Bomber's Parcel

BRANDON (CP) — A truckload of Winnipeg-bound mail was searched in vain Friday night as police and postal officials looked for a parcel mailed by the man who died in a parliament building bomb blast Wednesday.

No suspected mail was found in the 100 bags searched.

RCMP and postal authorities are attempting to find the parcel — police say it may be booby-trapped — which was said to have been mailed by Paul Joseph Chartier to his estranged wife in B.C.

Alberni IWA Backs Strike

PORT ALBERNI — Members of Local 1-85 International Woodworkers of America have given overwhelming support for strike action by the union.

In an unofficial vote conducted by business agent John Squire, 94.3 per cent voted to strike to back wage demands. A total of 3,446 ballots were cast, 196 voted against and there were 11 spoiled ballots. Results were made public Friday.

First indications were it might be on the mail car of the local post office because CPR's passenger train, the Canadian. But a thorough search of the east bound train failed to locate it.

Harrison Murray, district director of the post office here, said trucks as well as trains carry mail from British Columbia where the parcel originally was addressed.

RCMP said Paul Joseph Chartier mailed the parcel to his estranged wife in B.C. before his death. Chartier, who evidence indicates planned to explode a dynamite bomb in the House of Commons chamber Wednesday, was killed when it went off prematurely in a nearby washroom.

RETURNED

Mrs. Chartier could not be located by the post office, however, and the parcel was returned to Chartier's address in Toronto.

In Salmo, B.C., Mrs. Chartier confirmed she was told by the RCMP Thursday of a possibility of a booby-trapped parcel had been mailed to her by her husband.

Salmo RCMP said the parcel, about 14 inches square, arrived there a week or 10 days ago but evidently was returned by the local post office because Mrs. Chartier could not be located under that name.

Canada Wants U.S. Panhandle

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadians would like to absorb the Alaska Panhandle with suitable recompense for the United States, Speaker Sydney Smith of the Canadian Senate said Friday.

He was speaking at a press conference ending the ninth Canada-United States inter-parliamentary conference.

The panhandle, an old subject in bilateral talks, extends more than 300 miles down Canada's West Coast and cuts off access to tidewater.

JUNEAU

Smith, British Columbia Liberal and a co-leader of the 24-man Canadian delegation, said Canadians want the Alaskan boundary pushed back to the 60th parallel. This would wipe

All-Stars In Dance

Chief Baker of Alert Bay Indian band had lots of fun staging an impromptu dance routine with an all-star cast.

Premier Bennett led the way at Kelsey Bay terminal accompanied by his wife, Lt. Governor and Mrs. Penner with a number of cabinet members. (See Page 36). — (Agnes Flett) out the panhandle and include Juneau, the Alaskan capital.

Smith didn't specify what sort of recompense he felt Canada would offer but suggested the issue is for a government-to-government approach.

The conference report said Canada regards the panhandle as an impediment to developing northern B.C. and the Yukon and that "the problem was considered so grave that while Canada was not really interested in paying the Alaska Highway, it would seriously consider doing so for access rights."

The U.S. response to that was mention of a bill pending in the Senate to pay half the cost of paving the Alaska Highway linking the northern state via Alberta, B.C. and the Yukon.

Buddhist Sitdowns May Spark Flareup

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese war planes bombed rebel positions at Da Nang today for the first time and in Saigon thousands of Buddhist monks and nuns staged a sitdown hunger strike against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

At Da Nang, rebel troops lobbed mortar shells into the big U.S. air base, jammed with aircraft, but no damage or casualties were reported.

There were fears the day-long hunger strike would set off new violence in the capital, where anti-government rioting erupted Friday night.

The rise in the tempo of the political and military struggle threatened to further stall the war against the Viet Cong.

Fresh gunfire crackled in Da Nang, a hotbed of Buddhist opposition, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

From Hue, a Buddhist centre 50 miles beyond Da Nang, the nation's leading monk, Thich Tri Quang, telephoned this ultimatum to the Buddhist Institute here for relay to Ky: Resign or more blood will flow.

'Pray for People'

As the gulf between Ky and the Buddhists widened, about 400 to 500 monks and nuns, some carrying first-aid kits, marched to Saigon's main Buddhist institute to begin their strike. They were joined by hundreds of others.

Thich Thien Minh, one of the powerful institute leaders, urged the Buddhists to "pray for the people of central Viet Nam" where, he charged, hundreds have been killed or wounded in the civil strife.

At daybreak in Da Nang, four Skyraiders from Ky's air force made a low pass at rebel troops on the east side of the Da Nang River and dropped four or five bombs.

They also strafed rebel soldiers. No bombs were dropped into the city itself.

Heavy firing broke out as the planes attacked.

It was the first time air power had been brought into the battle of Da Nang, although there were reports that Vietnamese Air Force planes Friday strafed a column of defecting troops outside the northern city.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge returned from Washington to help work out a solution. The Buddhists are demanding an end to military rule.

Shouting against both the United States and the military government, about 1,000 youths rallied from the Buddhist Institute for a rampage in Saigon streets reminiscent of earlier disorders halted by a mid-April truce.

The mob smashed windows, stoned police and hurled flaming-gasoline bombs. One banner read: "No Vietnamese lives for American dollars."

Police checked the rioters with tear-gas.

Among other developments:

● Reports from the northern provinces making up South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area spoke of two convoys of government troops deserting to join the rebels, presumably at Da Nang. One convoy of defecting troops was reported strafed by Ky's planes.

● American officials hoped economic pressure on northern dissidents would help to achieve a settlement. They spoke of plans to cut supplies in order to bring the rebels to their knees.

● Sporadic fighting went on throughout the day in Da Nang. Machine-gun bullets chewed at the government's Da Nang garrison headquarters; government tanks and rebel gunners staged a 10-minute duel by night across the Da Nang River.

● Monsoon rains limited U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam for the sixth straight day. U.S. Air Cavalrymen fought on against an enemy force in the central highlands of South Viet Nam near An Khe.

Evacuation Weighed

State department officials in Washington said the U.S. is considering ordering the removal of about 400 American civilians from the strife-torn Hue-Da Nang area.

The Saigon government seemed to be aiming at wearing out rather than overrunning rebel troops and armed civilians in Da Nang.

Capt. Nguyen Thu Luong, commander of a company of paratroopers, said they were under orders to shoot high unless they definitely spotted a rebel firing at them.

Buddhist authorities said in a letter to Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Viet Nam, that at least 1,000 persons have been killed or wounded in the fighting, which developed after the government sent in 2,500 troops last Sunday.

The figure far exceeded other unofficial estimates of up to 300 killed and 500 wounded.

The Buddhists asked Walt, whose headquarters are at Da Nang, to force out the government troops and threatened that if he did not intervene:

"We have decided to die for our religion and our nation and will destroy immediately the Da Nang airfield."

The base is a strategic centre for air strikes at enemy targets in both North and South Viet Nam and is guarded by both U.S. Marines and government forces.

Tri Quang's ultimatum from Hue was telephoned to a leader of the Buddhist hierarchy in Saigon, Thich Thien Minh. Minh was asked to demand the government's immediate resignation. It could not be determined whether he succeeded in passing on the message to Ky.

The conflict results from varying interpretations of the government's pledge April 14 to hold elections within three to five months.

In agreeing to a truce, the Buddhist leaders made plain they considered a civilian government would evolve immediately from the promised elections.

Hunger Strikers Smashed

SAIGON (UPI) — Riot police, hurling tear gas grenades and firing rifles into the air, smashed through about 5,000 Buddhist hunger strikers in front of the Vinh Hoa Dao pagoda today.

The riot police charged through Buddhist barricades set up about 380 yards on either side of the pagoda.

Weeping monks and nuns and their followers fell back into the pagoda. The police did not attack the pagoda itself, but at least two tear gas grenades were lobbed inside the wall.

PULLOUT? 'U.S. HAS NO PLAN'

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — The United States has no contingency plan for the withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam should some future Saigon government ask them to leave, Army Secretary Stanley Resor said here Friday.

His unqualified "No, we don't" response came during a news conference prior to a news conference week luncheon address to the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A number of army officers present were visibly surprised. In the armed forces it is taken for granted that there are contingency plans for all possible situations.

Russia NATO Partner?

LONDON (AP) — A new idea for modernizing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was reported under official study today. It would allow the Atlantic alliance to work ultimately with the Soviet Union if China emerges as the world's third superpower.

"In reorganizing NATO we should concentrate less on keeping it as a purely defensive organization to meet military threats," said an authoritative British source.

"We should see it more as an organization of Western nations that could negotiate from strength with the aim of arriving at some common ground with Russia about attitudes of the world of the 1980s and 1990s when we might have to contend with a third superpower."

30 Planes Hit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Thirty private planes were destroyed and damage was estimated at $500,000 in a thunderstorm Friday.
